Russians Take Salsk, Important Rail Base; Nazis Admit Set-Back

Berlin for First Time Acknowledges Its Forces Trapped at Stalingrad and Retreating in The Caucasus—Soviet Troops Fast Encircling Capital of Donets River Basin

Capture of Rostov Near

LONDON, Jan. 22 (CP).—The important rail junction and German air base of Salsk, 100 miles southeast of Rostov, fell to the swiftly advancing Russian army of the Caucasus today and the Soviet troops also were fast encircling Voroshilovgrad, capital of the Donets Basin north of Rostov, according to The Soviet Monitor's recording of two Moscow communiques tonight.

A special communique announced the fall of Salsk, and the midnight bulletin reported the capture of Konstantinovskaya, which apparently is the important Don River city only seventy-five miles northeast of Rostov.

The Russians have been reported within about sixty miles of Rostov in this sector on the Lower Don.

The midnight bulletin also told of the capture of Nova Aidar, thirty miles northwest of Voroshilovgrad on the railway running north to Valuiki, already in Russian hands. This important Russian gain put the Red Army only fifty miles northeast of Artemovsk, big railway city on the line running south to Taganrog, on the Sea of Azov west of Rostov.

Thus the Russians now have seized many points on the north-south railway running roughly sixty miles west of the Moscow-Rostov line, and are driving on to capture a second rail network in the Ukraine.

Salsk's capture was the most important of the day because it put the Russians within seventy miles of Tikhoretsk, where the Stalingrad railway meets the main line running north. Cutting of this line would leave the Nazis only the risky escape channel of the Kerch Peninsula opposite the Crimea.

Once Rostov is taken or encircled, the Russians would begin a huge annihilation fight as they did with the twenty-two German divisions trapped at Stalingrad.

The Stalingrad liquidation still is going on against less than 50,000 of

Believe Steel Strike on Way To Settlement

Statement Says Proposals Sent to Union Locals—Details Withheld

OTTAWA, Jan. 22 (Saturday) (CP).—An official statement issued early today said that "The way seems clear for resumption of steel production at once" in steel plants at Sault Ste. Marie, Ont.; Sydney, N.S., and Trenton, N.S., which have been strikebound for more than a week.

The statement was issued on behalf of Prime Minister Mackenzie King and the United Steelworkers of America.

The statement said that details of the agreement of settlement are being communicated to the union locals involved in the strike by officials who attended conferences here yesterday and early this morning.

The details were not made public in the official statement.

In its original strike-settlement plan made public last Tuesday the Government offered to establish a minimum basic rate of fifty-five cents an hour, including cost-of-living bonus.

PRICES BOARD TAKES ACTION

Order Overrides Marketing Act in Allowing Potato Purchases From Growers

OTTAWA, Jan. 22 (CP).—Donald Gordon, Prices Board chairman, announced today that an order has been issued providing for the sale of potatoes direct from growers to the retail trade in the Vancouver area, whenever adequate supplies are not made available through the existing marketing agency.

The action was taken to "correct a serious shortage of potatoes in the Vancouver market," the board statement said. The order overrides Provincial marketing regulations if they keep potatoes off the market.

"Today's order was made necessary because in recent weeks adequate quantities of local potatoes have not been marketed by the Coast growers," the board said.

"A fortnight ago the Provincial marketing agency contracted to supply military requirements within the price ceiling, but sufficient supplies of local potatoes to meet civilian needs have not been forthcoming. In recent weeks the Coast

Seaman Given Help by Pope

LONDON, Jan. 22 (CP).—Petty Officer of the Royal Navy Albert Penny today told of his escape from an Italian prison camp and how he took refuge in Vatican City, where he met the Pope and was allowed to go about the church domain as he liked during his three months' internment.

Penny, who has been repatriated as a result of Vatican negotiations for his exchange for an Italian prisoner of equal rank, said he saw the Pope in the small throne room for a few minutes.

"He asked me about my wife and family and whether I was pleased to be going home. He gave my wife and myself his blessing and presented me with a rosary with a silver crucifix for each of us and a photograph of himself."

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22 (AP).—Lt.-Col. Lewis B. Puller, of the marines, just returned from Guadalcanal Island estimated today that there are less than 4,000 Japanese soldiers left on the island. He said there should be "no trouble" in cleaning them out and that they would probably surrender when the Americans close in.

Puller, who commanded a battalion of marines until he left the Solomons January 1, said that there were originally about 15,000 Japanese on Guadcanal and that of those 7,000 were killed up to January 1. Since that time the navy has reported an additional 1,000 killed.

These 8,000 are known to have been killed, Puller said, and his estimate of less than 4,000 remaining on the island meant that some 3,000 had been put out of action by capture, death from wounds or other causes.

Snowfall Adds to Charms of Victoria

THE discomfort of Victoria citizens in the prevailing cold spell is partially offset by the beauty of the city under a mantle of fresh snow, illustrated in the above picture taken in Beacon Hill Park yesterday near the rose garden, and to the rear of the white bear's pen. Press censors, possibly touched by the charming appearance of Victoria in Winter, relaxed regulations sufficiently to allow publication of the above reproduction. Ice had formed on the small pond in the foreground, and was sufficiently thick on Goodacre Lake to allow skating. Elsewhere in the city, on hills covered with well-packed snow and ice sleighing became the most popular outdoor sport for boys, girls, and even adults.

(Copyright, 1943, by Southam Co.)

LONDON, Jan. 22.—New Russian victories in the Caucasus, including the capture of Voshilovsk, have given another proof of the tremendous strength of the Red Army's blows. Thrusts on all parts of the Eastern Front have been speeded up and no German counter-attacks so far have been of any avail.

A profound impression has been caused in Finland, Hungary and among Axis adherents. From Stockholm the correspondent of The Times reports the Finns hope Russia will not turn formidable fighting power against them, but will continue attacking westward. The Finns, of course, accept the Nazi view that the Red Army cannot maintain its advance indefinitely. They also stress the strength of their positions on the Karelian front.

On the Leningrad front the Russians are moving southward, says the Moscow correspondent, aiming at freeing the strategically important railways. Southwest of Velikie Luki another railway centre, that of Nevel, is threatened. As for the trapped and starving army southwest of Stalingrad, it has now been worn down to 44,000 men, all in a desperate plight.

Papuan Campaign Ends As Resistance Broken

Victory for Allies in New Guinea Comes Exactly Six Months After Japanese Began Drive at Gona

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Jan. 23 (Saturday) (AP).—Exactly six months after the Japanese began their Papuan campaign with a landing at Gona, New Guinea, Allied forces practically ended it yesterday by shattering the last organized resistance around Sananada Point.

Seven hundred and twenty-five bodies have been counted and the counting continued.

Thus Papua became the first complete geographical unit to be won back from the Japanese. It consists of about 90,000 square miles and has a population of about 300,000 mostly dark-skinned natives.

The only activity left around Sananada is the stealthy pursuit of thinly scattered Japanese troops wandering through dense jungle. The majority of the Japanese killed in yesterday's push were in a pocket about 2,500 yards from the beach on the water-soaked Sananada Road.

Considerable equipment was captured, including field guns, trucks and ammunition.

Victoria Shivers In Coldest Spell For Thirty Years

Temperatures on Thursday Seven Degrees Above Zero When Wind Velocity Reached Forty-Six Miles Per Hour — Schools, Shipyards Closed But Transit Systems Carry On

VICTORIANS still shivered yesterday in the coldest spell of weather that has struck this city and district for more than thirty years, and which brought with it snowfalls and temperatures falling as low as seven degrees above zero. The last time this temperature was reached was in 1909.

The minimum temperature yesterday was 11 degrees, and an unofficial reading made downtown late last night was 27 degrees.

It was on Thursday that the thermometer dropped to 7 degrees, when the wind reached a speed of forty-six miles per hour.

The weather now public property because of temporary relaxation of censorship regulations announced yesterday which allows mention of current conditions, turned cold last Saturday when the minimum temperature was 20 degrees.

Since then, minimum temperatures each day have been as follows: Sunday, 14 degrees, Monday, 14 degrees, Tuesday, 28 degrees; Wednesday, 16 degrees, Thursday, 7 degrees.

The deepest snow recorded here was seven and a half inches, al-

EXPORT POLICY TO BE RELAXED

Regarded as Urgent Need—Shortage of Hemlock in Puget Sound

VANCOUVER, Jan. 22 (CP).—Alan H. Williamson, Federal timber controller, in an address today to 250 representative lumbermen of British Columbia, announced that Canada's log export policy probably will have to be relaxed this year to relieve the shortage of hemlock pulpwood in Puget Sound pulp mills.

Mr. Williamson said the Hyde Park Agreement basically provides for equal access to raw materials in Canada and the United States for purposes of equal urgency.

In view of this British Columbia will be expected to export to Puget Sound in 1943 a quantity of hemlock logs for pulp despite the fact that all such logs are urgently needed in this province to maintain production at existing rates, the timber controller said.

OUTLINES PROBLEMS

He outlined some of the problems of timber control and appealed for wholehearted co-operation in smoothing the flow of production so the vast wartime requirements of Canada, Britain, the United States and other essential markets might be met.

Mr. Williamson said that despite all their difficulties lumbermen were fortunate in belonging to a favored minority representing an industry with almost unlimited orders, enjoying priority in labor and equipment and assisted to some extent by higher prices and depletion of allowances in taxation.

TORONTO, Jan. 22 (CP).—R. C. Baird, assistant city solicitor appointed to investigate charges regarding treatment of girls brought from Western Canada to work in the John Inglis plant here reported today the girls expressed themselves "as quite contented with the present conditions of employment."

The city council appointed Baird to make the inquiry following assertions by Eamon Park, representative of the United Steel Workers of America (C.I.O.). The charges concerned age, arrangements regarding wages, rooming accommodation and the manner in which they were brought to Ontario. Baird said he arrived at the opinion that publicity

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 22 (AP).—Information reaching diplomatic sources in Stockholm tonight said it was estimated that the R.A.F. killed 890 Germans in the bombing raids on Berlin last week-end. The Germans have admitted only a list of 118 dead, the highest in the capital since the war began.

CONVOY REACHES AFRICA

LONDON, Jan. 23 (Saturday) (CP).—A huge Allied convoy carrying reinforcements of men, guns, vehicles and other equipment for the Allied armies has arrived at a North African port. The Daily Mirror reported today. Its correspondent, Archer Brooks, who sailed with the convoy, said the voyage was uneventful.

WOMEN EXECUTED

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 22 (AP).—Reports from Austrian newspapers said today that eighteen women have been executed by the German Gestapo since January 1, bringing to eighty-eight the known executions in Austria in the last two and one-half months. The majority were executed on charges of high treason.

Report Tripoli Falls To British; Rommel's Men Flee Into Tunisia

Last Important Defences of Capital Certainly in Allied Hands as City Swept by Demolition Bombs and Fires Set by Axis Engineers—Subjected to Strong Bombardment

Africa Corps Hit From Air

LONDON, Jan. 23 (Saturday) (CP).—The Daily Telegraph reported that "early today the Cairo radio announced that Tripoli had fallen."

Reuter's News Agency, however, quoted a midnight Cairo radio announcement as saying merely "it's possible that at this moment the Eighth Army is entering Tripoli but we have no news here."

Informed military sources said they had not received an official report of the fall of Tripoli and said the Cairo radio is not an official station.

LONDON, Jan. 22 (AP).—The last important defences of Tripoli were reported in British hands tonight and the main remnants of Marshal Erwin Rommel's fugitive Africa Corps were believed to have escaped into Tunisia.

Only a few German rearguards had been left behind to engage in a bitter last-minute defence of the capital and chief city of Mussolini's African Empire which now was swept by demolition explosions and fires set by the withdrawing Axis forces.

The Morocco radio said all important defences had fallen.

United States Government monitors said this broadcast added: "The rest of the city is at present being subjected to a strong bombardment of artillery."

The Axis Tunisian army of Col.-Gen. Jurgen von Arnim, already playing host to the Rommel corps, meanwhile was reported smashed back by the Free French, British and Americans, in bitter battles of considerable scale for control of a mountain highland guarding Rommel's coastal escape corridor.

Dispatches from Cairo said Allied pilots in flying over Tripoli, the last and most important port in Libya, saw the city covered by clouds of smoke rising from demolition fires and explosions which rearguard engineers evidently had set to destroy every military installation of value before the British troops could take over.

The exact location of the British Eighth Army was not disclosed in these dispatches but the Morocco radio previously had reported it in the suburbs. One wing was believed sweeping to the southwest in efforts to cut off the retreat of enemy forces remaining in the city.

The Cairo dispatches said all signs indicated that only rearguards, composed of Germans, had been left behind and these were putting up a desperate resistance to slow the British advance.

The Italians in Rommel's army, it was said, had been sent ahead into Tunisia where they had gone fifty miles beyond the border.

The British entry into the environs of Tripoli was announced by the Morocco radio, and the fall of the city was momentarily expected.

ROMMEL RACES AWAY

Rommel raced onward to reach a juncture with the Axis army of Col.-Gen. Von Arnim in Tunisia.

German Airfields Bombed in Daylight, Following Night Raids on Rhur

LONDON, Jan. 22 (AP).—Swarms of British, Canadian, American and other Allied planes carried out extensive, large-scale offensive sweeps over Northern France and Belgium today in a follow-up to the ninth night bomber attack this month on Hitler's Ruhr Valley arsenal.

The Air Ministry said seven German fighters were destroyed and that four Allied bombers and six fighters were lost in the daylight operations that extended over 350 miles of German-occupied coastal territory from Ghent to the Cherbourg Peninsula.

Oil installations at Terneuzen, near Ghent, were bombed as were German airfields at Maupertus, Abbeville St. Omer and on the Cherbourg Peninsula. "Many squadrons" which included Canadian and other Commonwealth fighters, as well as British and American, covered the bombers, fighting swirling dogfights high above the occupied coast. All the Canadians returned.

CANADIANS WIN GREAT PRAISE

Anti-Aircraft Battery Plays Good Part in London's Aerial Defence

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, Jan. 22 (CP).—A Canadian anti-aircraft battery was praised today for its part in the aerial defence of London last Sunday when it tossed four tons of high-explosive shells a minute at German bombers.

It is the only Canadian heavy anti-aircraft battery in the London defence area. The unit was praised by the general officer commanding the ack-ack command, Sir Frederick Pile, who messaged, "Keep up the good work, Canada."

Using the heaviest anti-aircraft guns in operation the Canadians, whose motto is "Come on, Fritz," were near a bombing attack and high explosives fell within blast range of their gunsite but they suffered nothing worse than slight injuries from flying splinters.

The Canadians were not credited with destruction of enemy planes but they were confident that at least two raiders they engaged did not return to their bases.

The commander of the Canadians, Maj. P. B. Zink, of Dartmouth, N.S., was singled out in Sir Frederick's message.

This battery which last fired its guns "to kill" last July, when it was stationed on the coast, was recruited in Winnipeg and, with the exception of a few men from the Maritimes, most of the gunners are Manitobans. The officers come from many parts of Canada.

AID TO RUSSIA

TORONTO, Jan. 22 (CP).—The Canadian Aid to Russia Fund has received from all sources approximately $967,000 in cash and pledges, J. S. McLean, chairman of the National Committee, announced today. Today's subscriptions totaled $18,031.73.

Order Well Carried Out By 8th Army

CAIRO, Jan. 16 (Delayed) (AP).—The British Eighth Army's final drive to clean up Tripolitania began at dawn on January 15, with Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery's war cry, "On to Tripoli!"

His order of the day was read to the troops huddled together in small groups just before they attacked. It said:

"Tripoli is the only town in the Italian overseas empire still remaining in their possession. Therefore we will take it from them; they will then have no empire.

"If each one of us, whether front-line soldier or officer or man whose duty is performed in some other sphere, puts his whole heart and soul into this next contest, then nothing can stop us. Nothing has stopped us since the Battle of Egypt began October 23. Nothing will stop us now."

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22 (AP).—Fighting French headquarters here announced today that Major R. Sarratt, commander of the French garrison on Martinique had "escaped" from that Caribbean island and joined the forces of the Fighting French.

"PLAY TOO ROUGH"

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 22 (AP).—Thomas Murdock, twenty-one-year-old Marine back home to recover from wounds suffered in action on Guadalcanal Island, believes he discovered a Japanese Confucius on the island. He quoted a captured Japanese captain as saying "Tojo, he say American Marines all playboys but we say they play too rough."

PLANE OVERDUE WITH NINETEEN

Was Sighted Last Near San Francisco—Cargo Aircraft Also Overdue

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22 (AP).—The United States Navy reported today that a transport seaplane, with nineteen persons aboard, is overdue on a flight from Pearl Harbor to San Francisco.

No report from the big plane has been received since early Thursday morning when it circled in the vicinity of San Francisco, the navy said.

The navy also reported tonight that one of its twin-engined cargo transport land-type planes is overdue after taking off at 5.40 p.m. yesterday from Winslow, Ariz., for San Pedro, Calif. Aboard the cargo plane were three officers and three men, cargo and mail.

The announcement on the missing seaplane said:

Thinks Plane Lost in Pass

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz., Jan. 22 (AP).—Sheriff Peery Francis, after a day-long investigation, announced tonight he was certain a twin-engined navy transport plane, missing for more than thirty hours, had come to rest somewhere in Schultz Pass, which grooves the 12,000-foot San Francisco peaks and 10,000-foot Mount Elden, north of here.

It was in the same locality that six army men crashed to death about a year ago, en route from Albuquerque, N.M., to the Pacific Coast.

Francis said weather conditions probably would slow the search.

New Provisions Made For Civil Employment

Labor Shortages May Be Alleviated by Compulsory Transfer of Workers to More Necessary Jobs

OTTAWA, Jan. 22 (CP).—Men in age groups subject to military call but who are not in uniform may be used to alleviate labor shortages through compulsory transfer in their civilian employment, Labor Minister Mitchell announced today in making public new consolidated Civilian Selective Service regulations.

Other new provisions of the manpower programme, announced today, are:

1. Employers must notify the Employment Service of any surplus workers.

2. Persons from sixteen to sixty-five years of age—except full-time students, housewives and clergy—must register for work if not gainfully employed for seven consecutive days;

3. Selective Service officers may authorize persons to leave their employment on seven days' notice to take other jobs, regardless of employment contracts which the employers of those persons may hold;

4. Agricultural workers are limited to a total of sixty days' work in a year in another industry without permit and may not accept work without a permit in a town or city of more than 5,000 population.

Mr. Mitchell announced the new

Morgan Blames Fuel Board for Shortage

Chairman of Civic Stove Wood Committee Analyzes Situation in Report Prepared for Presentation at Next City Council Meeting

CHARGES that inefficiency of the Fuel Control Board of Wartime Prices and Trade Board caused the present fuel shortage in Victoria will be made by Alderman W. Lloyd Morgan, chairman of the civic fuel committee, in the following report to be presented at the next meeting of the City Council.

"In my opinion, the fuel shortage in Victoria, in fact throughout the province is almost entirely due to the inefficiency and bungling of Fuel Board officials," Alderman Morgan states.

"There is absolutely no need for a shortage of wood fuel in this city. I might mention that coal is being shipped from this Island to United States points otherwise there would also be plenty of coal.

"From my long experience in the fuel business, I know that many mistakes have been made and are still being made by officials of the Fuel Board. Men have been placed in positions who have had no experience and consequently are without knowledge of the proper methods for handling the fuel problem.

"I warned the Fuel Board last Summer what would happen in this city and also in Vancouver this Winter. The Fuel Board had ample time to make proper arrangements for a Winter fuel supply, but the necessary action was not taken. More probably they did not know what action to take. The appointed officials seem to have had too much hindsight and too little foresight.

"Within the last two months the local Fuel Board officials refused a licence to a man who had secured a contract for all the millwood from a new lumber mill Up-Island, which, as soon as operating, would have meant three or four extra carloads of wood daily into Victoria. The reason for refusing this licence was that the individual in question had not formerly held a wood dealer's licence in Victoria, although he held such a licence at Vancouver.

CLAIMS REASON FEEBLE

"This seems to be a feeble reason for refusing to grant a licence. Actually Fuel Board officials should welcome anybody into the fuel business at present, especially a man who is able to get three or four cars of fuel a day, because so many men formerly in the wood business have left to enter better paid employment.

"Another matter which has helped to unsettle the wood fuel business in Victoria is the price changes which have been ordered by the Fuel Board. A ceiling price is a good thing. It is a protection for the public, but the ceiling in Victoria was fixed too high, in some instances higher than most wood dealers expected or wanted, in other instances too low, which resulted in a stoppage of business.

"Fuel board officials have also interfered with prices being paid by the retailer to the mills. I see no need for any authority to step in and tell the wholesaler his price is too low. Millmen know what they are doing and are able to look after themselves. Because of this interference, prices for millwood, kindling wood, and in fact all classes of wood fuel, are too high. Since the war started this has cost the citizens an extra $1,000 every day. Unless these asinine methods of Fuel Board officials are changed, I am afraid the present situation will continue.

"To eliminate the unnecessary hardships from which a large number of citizens are now suffering, I offer the following recommendations:

INVESTIGATE ORDERS

"Officials should be appointed to investigate every request for fuel. If not a genuine request, the offender should be prosecuted.

"Present regulations covering the supply of sawdust and wood fuel should be revised to the end that some be drastically amended and others abolished.

"Officials should be appointed who have had practical experience in the fuel business. I agree with the mayor of Vancouver, who has also placed the blame squarely on the shoulders of Fuel Board officials.

"If the above recommendations are carried out the present situation can be relieved materially in a few weeks, but unless drastic steps are taken without delay there will be no improvement, and it will be worse next Winter.

"I recommend that copies of this report be sent to the fuel controller at Ottawa, to Brown of the Fuel Board at Vancouver, and to the Vancouver City Council."

The capital of the ancient Toltec Indian empire, which disappeared 400 years before the arrival of Cortes, has been located in Northern Mexico.

Frozen Ponds Most Popular Spots in District

THESE pictures, showing residents enjoying the unusual Victoria sport of outdoor skating were taken last Sunday at Third Trestle Pond, Interurban Road, Saanich, but could not be published until today because of censorship regulations, authorities finally admitting officially that a cold spell had struck the Pacific Coast. In the upper picture a number of girls well dressed for protection against the prevailing temperature of 23 degrees and lower, effect a successful crossing of a barbed wire fence to reach the skating surface. In the centre a quartette of girls scorn the cold wind as they skate gracefully in unison. The sailor in the lower picture is as much at home on skates as on the quarter-deck of his ship, and lends confidence to two charming companions. He was only one of several servicemen, many of whom were from the East, who availed themselves of the opportunity to enjoy conditions common to their native sections of Canada.

cities have had to rely chiefly on supplies coming in from Alberta and the Interior of British Columbia."

Under the order, which is effective immediately, a wholesale dealer whose order is not filled by the growers' marketing agency within seven days may purchase potatoes direct from individual growers in the Coast region. These growers in turn, if the agency fails to supply, are released from their obligation to sell through one agency and are free to sell direct to the wholesale trade.

"The board's order in this respect, enacted as it is under authority of the War Measures Act, overrides the marketing regulations if and when they restrict the normal flow of potatoes to the market," the statement said.

"The encouragement to wholesalers to seek their own sources of supply when unable to purchase potatoes through customary channels will, it is felt, serve to facilitate the movement of local potatoes to the trade."

Mr. Gordon said the order indicated the Government's determination to prevent artificial shortages of necessary foods developing through the arbitrary withholding of supplies for any reason.

If the present order is not sufficient, the board is prepared to take other measures in an effort to meet the existing shortage of potatoes for civilian needs, he said.

air bases from Tunisia on the west, Libya on the east and Malta in the Mediterranean, was coming into heavy use in the development battle for North Africa.

Official reports from Allied headquarters in Cairo and in North Africa told of air attacks on Rommel's fugitives twenty-five miles deep into Tunisia as early as yesterday; of a continuing offensive patrol over the Mediterranean between Tunisia and the Axis base of Sicily in which an Axis freighter was sunk in those narrow waters and a tanker damaged; of unending assaults upon Tripoli itself, of sweeps over both the Tunisian and Tripolitanian battle rear, of attacks on enemy transport from the Tripolitanian frontier to Gabes in Tunisia in which many vehicles were destroyed.

An Admiralty announcement disclosed a light naval force thrusting into Tripoli Harbor Tuesday night had sunk an Italian submarine and had bombarded the harbor works without suffering any damage of consequence.

With twin tank thrusts down either side of the mountain chain southwestward from Pont du Fahs Von Arnim in Tunisia was trying urgently to throw up a fifty-mile-long barrier that would hold the Allies off Rommel's probable line of retreat into Tunisia along the coast.

His column along the eastern side of the mountains was at last report still on the advance, menacing the Town of Ousseltia, but the westward force was said in dispatches from Allied North African headquarters to have been brought to a halt by strong counter-attacks by ground groups heavily supported by the Allied air arm.

On the east of the mountains the French reported that the Nazis were spearheaded by fifty tanks and that 150 German tanks, many of them the most modern, were in action in the whole of that general sector.

Allied planes destroyed ten Axis machines and "well over" sixty-five motor vehicles in their sweeps along the Tunisian coastal road, losing only three aircraft themselves. At Pont Du Fahs, bombers and fighters blasted away the main portion of the road north of that town which is vital to the Germans in reinforcing their forces to the northwest.

Bombers shot down two tri-motored Italian bombers and downed three out of a group of Messerschmitt 109's which jumped them.

French troops, reinforced by the British First Army, have advanced several miles in central Tunisia, a communique from French headquarters in North Africa said tonight.

The communique said:

"The enemy's aggressive action has diminished during today in the valley of Oued Kebir.

"Our forces reinforced by British elements made an advance of several miles.

"To the northwest of Kairouan the strong enemy attack reported in the previous communique was stopped and partly repulsed.

American troops are engaged in this action.

"The enemy attack on our positions dominating the approaches to Kairouan twenty miles west of the town has completely failed.

"In the Eastern Sahara more than 200 prisoners were taken when Serdeles and El Barca were captured. By these operations the encirclement of Ghat has been accomplished.

"During the past ten days the Lafayette squadron shot down one Focke-Wulf on that front. One of our planes is missing."

Military circles here estimate Field Marshal Erwin Rommel had twelve divisions of Axis troops at his disposal when the British Eighth Army opened its offensive at El Alamein last October 19.

Of these four were German—two infantry and two armored. The Italians had two armored divisions in addition to six divisions of infantry.

A German division when at full strength consists of approximately 14,000 men, an Italian division about 10,000.

Thus Rommel is estimated to have had about 126,000 men when he began his long retreat across Egypt and Libya, but he is believed to have lost perhaps half his force in killed or captured between Alamein and Tripoli.

RUSSIANS CAPTURE SALSK, RAIL BASE

the original total of some 220,000 Axis troops.

The Russians also reported gains extending from Salsk 200 miles almost due south to the Caucasian mountain range.

NEAR OIL FIELDS

On the Lower Caucasian railway skirting the mountains Soviet troops are driving northwestward and last were reported about forty-two miles from Armavir, rail gateway to the Maikop oil fields to the west.

For the first time today the German High Command admitted that its divisions at Stalingrad—were "closely encircled," and also acknowledged a retreat in the Caucasus.

But the Russians said "fierce fighting is taking place at every populated place and every advantageous line."

No further gains were reported in the sector south of Voronezh on the westward push toward Kharkov and Kursk, but the Russians said they had wiped out more than 700 Axis troops northwest of Olkhovatka. This town is fifty miles east of Valuiki, one of the advance Russian points in the drive toward Kharkov, eighty-two miles beyond. The communique said 1,800 prisoners were taken in this action.

On the central front southwest of Velikie Luki the Russians said they had captured nine populated places. Velikie Luki is northwest of Moscow and about ninety miles from the Latvian frontier.

Salsk with its important airfields had been stubbornly defended. It was a major goal of the Russian drive straight down into the Caucasus from Stalingrad. The capture of Salsk marked a 215-mile gain from Stalingrad.

The Russians also announced the capture of Mikoyan-Shakhar, deep in the Caucasus Mountains just north and west of Mount Elborus, highest peak in the snow-blanketed range. The town is on the headwaters of the Kuban River sixty miles south of Nevinnomissokaya, foremost advance point in the Russian drive up the Rostov-Baku railway.

The Germans claimed last Summer that the Nazi war flag was hoisted on Mount Elborus, 18,471-foot peak, on August 21. The Russians never admitted the Germans had driven that far into the mountains, which stood as a barrier, denying the Nazis access to the vast oil deposits to the south.

In all their successful offensives from Leningrad to the Kuban River the Russians reported the additional liquidation of 4,300 enemy troops. About half were killed and the others captured.

FINDS CHARGES NOT WARRANTED

given Park's statement "has been far out of proportion to that warranted by the facts."

Park charged that the girls "received insufficient money to maintain them" and that the rooming accommodation given was "second rate."

Baird reported the girls came by arrangement with the company, one group of forty-two arriving December 17 from Saskatoon and another of seventeen arriving from Winnipeg December 18. The first group consisted of graduates of various provincial war training schools in Saskatchewan, originally intended for the Government small arms plant at Long Branch, Ont. Their fares east were paid by Saskatchewan and not by the company.

Baird said C. A. Conway, employment manager, interviewed the girls personally and denied promising they would be paid on a basis of $18.50 weekly, plus production and cost-of-living bonus as Park had asserted.

STATES TERMS

"On the contrary Mr. Conway states he told the girls they would be paid thirty-five cents an hour, plus cost-of-living bonus of $2.80 for a full forty-eight-hour week, less taxes and unemployment insurance, with, however, the prospect of a production bonus, depending on each girl's individual progress and varying according to the type of work being done," Baird said. "The girls I interviewed, with one exception, unhesitatingly confirmed Mr. Conway's statement regarding wages.

"One girl in an unimpressive manner quoted Mr. Conway as having held out the prospects of $19.50 weekly, plus production and cost-of-living bonus. I am unable to reconcile this difference of understanding on the point, particularly as the girls were explained the prospective Toronto employment in groups and have concluded that Mr. Conway's statement regarding the matter is the correct one."

Baird said that Park had referred to the girls' ages as many being seventeen and eighteen but he found only one seventeen, turning eighteen in two months, and that she had her parents' written consent to work. The majority were in their middle twenties and up to thirty-five.

"Before leaving for Toronto, the girls were strongly advised to bring sufficient money to see themselves through to their first pay," Baird added. "Nevertheless in a number of cases some arrived here practically penniless."

Baird said the Y.W.C.A. lined up rooming accommodation for the girls and each was interviewed regarding rooms. There had been some complaints regarding these rooms but they were adjusted through the Y.W.C.A. when reported to that organization.

Cash advances were made by the company to girls arriving without funds "in varying amounts ranging up to $15," Baird reported. Weekly deductions on account of the money loaned are being made but "the result has been that in no case has any of the girls in fact received insufficient money in their pay envelope to maintain them as charged by Mr. Park."

The report also denied Park's statement that a collection was taken by union stewards to see the girls through the Christmas holiday.

FIRE DESTROYS CONVENT

HUNTINGDON, Que., Jan. 22 (CP).—Fire destroyed the girls' convent of the Congregation de Notre Dame nuns here last night, driving approximately 100 pupils and a staff of more than ten teaching nuns into sub-zero weather. None was injured.

PREMIER IS UNDER FIRE

Canadian Pacific's Vice-President Speaks Mind to Ontario's Govt. Leader

MONTREAL, Jan 22 — W M Neal, vice-president, Canadian Pacific Railway, today released a letter addressed by him to Premier Conant, of Ontario, replying to the recent letter which the Premier of Ontario addressed to Colonel J A Cross, chief commissioner of the Board of Transport Commissioners for Canada, in connection with the train wreck at Almonte, Ontario, on December 27.

Mr. Neal's letter follows In a letter to the chief commissioner of the Board of Transport Commissioners, which is reported in the press as having been made public by you, you are quoted as saying with reference to the recent deplorable accident at Almonte that "There is no doubt in the minds of the provincial officials at the inquest that the rules and regulations under which the trains involved in the wreck were operating are sadly obsolete and much in need of revision The chief coroner of the province is also quoted in the press as having said at the inquest that the "cobwebs should be dusted off the rule books"

UNWARRANTED

These public statements are, in our view unwarranted as not being in accordance with the facts of the case.

Even the coroner's jury, though taking a humane view of circumstances which had brought about tragedy to one of the men concerned, did not see fit to place its verdict upon the ground so flippantly suggested by the chief coroner. In point of fact, the company's rules (with one exception to be mentioned) conform in every material respect to those adopted as standard throughout this continent, and are the result of the best judgment and experience of skilled railway operating men in the United States and Canada Similar rules are in use in the Canadian National Railways and were adopted within the past few years on the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway for the operation of which you and your associates in the Ontario Government are responsible.

The exception to which I refer is a specific rule in the Canadian Pacific Rule Book designed to afford added protection to a train standing at a station which was sanctioned by the Governor-in-Council on the recommendation of the Board of Railway Commissioners as recently as 1936 and the observance of which would have prevented this accident.

HUMAN AGENCY

These rules necessarily depend for efficacy upon human agency, but no accident in train operation ever occurs on the Canadian Pacific or, indeed on any well-managed railway system, which is not the subject of searching investigation with relation to the operating rules involved

As Attorney-General of the Province of Ontario you, of course, appreciate that the verdict of a coroner's jury determines nothing in so far as legal responsibility is concerned and that law makes ample provision for fixing responsibility for this calamity.

The press comment upon your letter shows that an unfair and improper reflection has been made upon this company's operating personnel and methods in general; and however reluctant we may be to indulge in newspaper controversy regarding a question which should be decided by a competent tribunal we feel obliged, since your letter was handed to the press to take the same course with regard to this one

Yours very truly (signed) W M Neal, vice-president.

FOUGHT WIND, TIDE AND SEA

Survivors Had Terrible Experience in Lifeboat After Ss. Northolm Foundered

VANCOUVER, Jan. 22 (CP)—The desperate struggle for life following the foundering of the coastal freighter Northolm was told today by the two survivors—Chief Officer Ray Perry and Able Seaman Henry Gerbrandt. Fifteen seamen perished when the vessel foundered off the north end of Vancouver Island

Perry and Gerbrandt spent a half day along the Vancouver Island beach with the bodies of four dead before Bernt Ronning, middle-aged Norwegian trapper, arrived and gave them assistance.

It was at 1 30 p.m last Saturday when the Northolm was caught in the sweep of a tide rounding the island, and thrown in the trough in the fierce and choppy sea

All hands, excepting the cook were on deck, Mr Perry said Nine apparently were swept over and drowned before they could move to the lifeboats Perry and seven other men launched a boat and when all hope of picking up any of the others had passed, they headed for the island shore.

For twelve hours the men fought the wind the tide and the choppy seas One by one they became unconscious Six of them died The bodies of two pitched overboard Then Gerbrandt's legs failed him He went numb from the knees down.

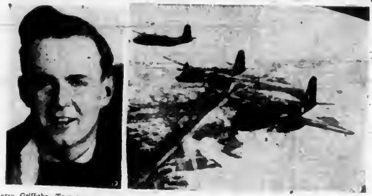
RIGGED A SAIL

The only able-bodied one was Perry a strongly-built man Finding it impossible to row the heavily-laden boat himself, he rigged a sail and eventually reached the beach just to the south of Commerell Point off Raft Cove

It was then about 1 30 a.m. Sunday. Gerbrandt tried to struggle up the beach but fell and bruised his knees on the rocks Perry dragged and carried him to safety. Then Perry made a roaring fire though he had great difficulty because of wet matches.

Perry and Gerbrandt were still suffering from nervous shock when they reached Vancouver today Gerbrandt was unable to walk.

Falls From Bomber, Skids to Safety



Harry Griffiths, Toronto twenty-year-old member of the Royal Air Force Ferry Command, had a narrow escape from death when he fell through the escape hatch of a speeding Boston bomber, pictured above. The accident occurred when the bomber was 500 feet in the air above the Ottawa River. Griffiths clung to the edge of the escape hatch (indicated by arrow), while Pilot Sidney Gerow brought the plane down to within five feet of the river ice and let Griffiths slide until he was ready to drop off. Griffiths (left, above) was not seriously injured.

HAIR-RAISING BOMBING RAID

Pilot Awarded D.F.C. for Conduct When Plane Became Unmanageable

OTTAWA Jan 22 (CP)—Flt Lt J Angus MacLean twenty-eight of Beaton's Mills, P.E.I. now a test pilot on "everything from Spitfires to Lancasters" has received the Distinguished Flying Cross from the hands of King George

R.C.A.F. Headquarters said in a statement that his D.F.C. was awarded for a hair-raising bombing raid on the Ruhr in June, 1942, when MacLean was captain of an aircraft attacking a target in that important German industrial valley MacLean's official citation tells the story in terse but explicit terms.

"During the bombing run, heavy anti-aircraft fire was encountered The aircraft sustained damage, the aileron became jammed, and when another shell burst immediately below the port wing the aircraft turned on its back and went into an inverted spiral dive

Flt Lt MacLean recovered control of the aircraft and released his bombs on the target. On the return flight the aircraft was attacked from below by an enemy fighter. Further damage was sustained

"Shortly afterwards both the port engines failed, as the fuel system had been shot away Despite great efforts on the part of Flt Lt MacLean, the bomber eventually became uncontrollable, and both he and his crew were compelled to leave it by parachute"

The citation, notable though it is is remarkable for its understatement, said the R.C.A.F. account.

"Both he and his crew were compelled to leave it by parachute" It could have been added that the plane was so low that MacLean's chute opened just above the ground and he struck the ground so hard that his back was injured The aircraft crashed only 170 yards from the pilot.

He served as instructor at Saskatoon and MacLeod, Alta, before going overseas in March, 1942.

Railway Co. Issues Booklet On War Services

With the outbreak of war, the Canadian Pacific Railway placed its entire resources at the disposal of the nation. The extent to which the nation has used the railway's services, properties and staff in the fight for victory is described in a sixteen-page booklet. The Canadian Pacific at War which has reached this office

This is the pictorial story of a big transportation company, operating in every section of Canada and its transformation from ordinary peacetime services into an efficient weapon of war

Graphic illustrations show railway shops where locomotives and railway cars were formerly built, now turning out hundreds of tanks and naval guns—trains speeding men of the fighting forces and uniformed women too to training camps or to embarkation points for the fighting fronts, long, heavily loaded freight trains and the way that efficient packing and handling has speeded wartime freight traffic of record proportions, the Empress of Britain, Empress of Asia Montrose and other Canadian Pacific ships, "lost in action", flying schools where Allied airmen are trained for battle and which are operated on a non-profit basis, women workers doing jobs to relieve men for more essential duties

Also told in the booklet is the story of a faithful, patriotic staff, some 14,000 in active war service on land on sea and in the air, and of 50,000 others at home working without stint to make and to transport the implements of war, and serving in countless other ways

"The Canadian Pacific at War" is, to a large extent, the story of every responsible Canadian company and industry a diagram of concerted civilian effort backing up the fighting men, and which must, eventually, lead to victory.

NO TRACE OF PLANE

HALIFAX Jan 22 (CP)—An 'extensive' search is being made for one of the Dominion's best-known airmen, Flt. Lt S Alward (Al) Cheesman of Port Arthur, Ont., and two companions, missing since last Sunday, the headquarters of the Eastern Air Command announced here today

An air force statement said that no trace of their plane has been found since it left its base at Scoudouc, N.S., on a routine flight

With Flt Lt Cheesman were Cpl G A Nimmons, of Peterborough, Ont, and L.A.C. P G Landry, of Moncton, N.B.

EMERGENCY KIT IN PRODUCTION

Canadian Navy Providing Equipment for Sustenance Of Torpedoed Seamen

OTTAWA Jan 22 (CP)—The Royal Canadian Navy, which recently issued an emergency ration container to provide its torpedoed seamen with life-sustaining foods and water today announced production of a supplementary kit which should appeal to every outdoors man who has attempted to "battle it out" with the elements Into the kit which is the same size as the emergency rations box but bears a large Red Cross insignia on its side, go

Twelve ounces of 35 overproof rum, 180 waterproof cigarettes, with 100 large-head fuses of "wind matches" to light them; a waterproof flashlight, a highly polished mirror for daytime heliograph signaling a navy pattern clasp knife, with marlin spike and big blade, two hand fishing lines with hooks, sinkers and a trolling spoon, shell and field dressings, two tubes of triple-dye jelly for anti-burn treatment and five tins of the newly developed "canned water".

The new kit has been developed by Lieut. Reginald W Millard, of Vancouver, assisted in medical details by Surgeon Lieut-Cmdr J E DeBelle of Montreal They collaborated with Lieut-Cmdr James Campbell, of Toronto, on the previously announced rations container

The emergency kit, however, is something entirely new to Canadian ships One will be placed on each raft float and ship, and already 4,000 have gone into production The Red Cross tin is designed to help stricken seamen protect themselves against the ravages of sun, wind and waves

BEST STIMULANT

Army and naval authorities agreed that rum was the best stimulant to go into the box "Rum was found much better than brandy," said Lieut Millard "It is assimilated into the blood stream much more quickly and its sugar content adds to the nutritional value"

Lieut. Millard said he considered the waterproof flashlight one of the kit's most important items

"It should prove invaluable in signaling The light is completely encased in rubber—even the little button with which you turn it on"

Though the navy has officially adopted the kit, Lieut. Millard said he hoped the day would come when the merchant navy equips all its ships life rafts and floats with the container

ABORIGINES' HOES

Kansas aborigines made hoes from the shoulder blades of bison archeologists have discovered.

INSTRUCTIVE PAPER ISSUED

Government Takes Steps to Reduce Death Toll of Torpedoed Seamen

LONDON, Jan 22 (CP)—The British Government, streamlining life-saving methods at sea has taken broad steps to educate seamen on how to act when their ships are torpedoed This move was the issuing of an instructive White Paper for seamen's guidance The White Paper was compiled by a committee headed by Surgeon Vice-Admiral Sir Sheldon Dudley.

"If you do not get away in a boat, go over the lower side if the ship has listed," the paper advised "If you go over the upper side you will be in danger of being badly hurt by barnacles and marine growths and of fracturing your ankles by hitting your heels against the bilge keel Jump into the water feet first do not dive"

If persons have to jump into burning oil discharged into the sea they can, if good swimmers, avoid being burned by adopting the following procedure tested and proved successful:

Jump feet first through the flames Swim as long as possible under water, then spring above the flames and breathe, taking a breast stroke to push the flames away, then sink and swim under again

Experience has shown that comfort and the chances of survival depend to a great extent upon the frame of mind

"Do not sing or shout, for by doing so you use up your strength and lose valuable water to your breath" it continued "Pay special attention to your feet If they cannot be kept dry, boots should be left on Once swelling is noticed, however, the boots must be removed"

A suitable diet for each person per day includes one ounce of high fat content biscuits, condensed milk, chocolate and butterfat This amount of food is the minimum required

"If you have a death on board, strip off and divide the clothing among the survivors, before committing the body to the sea Keep a lookout on the sick because they sometimes imagine they are back home and will, for example want to go and get themselves a drink"

ORDER INCLUDES VARIETY OF FISH

Ottawa Places New Prices on Sea Products Hitherto Exempt From Ceiling Regulations

OTTAWA Jan 22 (CP) — The Prices Board today issued an order effective immediately bringing under a measure of price control several varieties of fish hitherto exempt from the price ceiling

The order limiting the mark-ups of wholesalers and retailers applies to lobsters, oysters, clams, crabs shrimps scallops winkles codfish (Eastern and Western), herring (including sardines), haddock smelts, mackerel, hake, halibut and all fresh water fish except salmon and other fish which inhabit fresh water only temporarily

Under the new order the price ceiling for wholesalers is the price paid the primary producer or processor, plus transportation charges if not included and a mark-up (percentage of cost) not more than customarily obtained by them in the basic period (September 15 to October 1, 1941), but in no case exceeding the maximum mark-up specified in the order.

This is 10 per cent on fish and fish products in hermetically-sealed containers and 20 per cent on other fish and fish products Wholesalers selling fish or fish products in less than case lots may add handling charge of one cent per pound

The price ceiling for retailers is the price paid the primary producer or processor plus transportation charges if not included, and a mark-up not greater than obtained in the basic period, but in no case exceeding the maximum specified in the order, namely 25 per cent of selling price on fish in hermetically-sealed containers and 33 1-3 per cent on other fish and fish products.

SOLDIERS UNLOAD ALL SHIPS AT GUADALCANAL

WASHINGTON Jan 22 (AP)—Lt-Col Lewis B Puller, of the marines, just back from Guadalcanal Island, said today soldiers, sailors and marines unload all supply ships at the island

He made the statement at an informal press conference in which he was told of a story in the Akron Beacon Journal quoting six Guadalcanal veterans as saying union seamen of a merchant ship lying off the island refused to unload their ship on Sunday.

"They've had no difficulties of this nature in the Solomons" Puller said "All the ships are unloaded as a matter of routine by the soldiers sailors or marines Even those brought in by merchant seamen—of which there are very few, because most of the ships are transports—are unloaded by soldiers sailors or marines.

AN EMERGENCY NOW

Discussing the fuel situation recently, the national fuel controller spoke as if there might be an emergency one year hence, but as most of the public is aware in Coast cities the emergency has already arrived. It is here and now that the fuel shortage is pressing, in the middle of an unprecedented cold snap, and it is no solution to suggest, as has been suggested, that the situation may be relieved in two months' time. People without fuel in their homes can see little prospect of any relief in that.

The plain facts of the case are that although more coal was mined in British Columbia last year than for some years past, totally inadequate provision was made for the civilian populations of Victoria, Vancouver and several other British Columbia cities, not excluding the Interior. What supplies have been available have gone in part elsewhere, and often at the expense of the civilian populations who have no other means of supply.

In this community, coal dealers report that their order books are blocked with unfilled orders sufficient to keep them busy for two months ahead; some dealers will not accept orders from the public at all, on the ground that all of their supply is going elsewhere; and the public is being asked to pay cash in advance in instances where the first deliveries cannot be pledged for sixty days or some such similar period. Of necessity, public distress and hardship have developed—not a year hence, but now.

In this area, also, Government offices in the Legislative Buildings are going on a day to day basis, with fuel deliveries uncertain and often then inadequate. The schools, from grade to High Schools, have been closed because of the actual weather condition outside, and also because the temperature of school buildings could not be maintained. In private homes the condition is far worse, because sawdust, wood and coal all have been short, and no adequate steps had been taken to meet the over-all situation. Specially in the case of aged people, those who are ill or convalescent, the condition has been acute, as physicians and hospitals know.

The latest proposal from the fuel controller of Canada was that the municipalities should handle the problem themselves. This proposal, coming after a year of delay and general frustration, is little enough. Slight as it is, some cities have taken hold of it. In Toronto it was reported this week that that city is buying coal in bulk, dumping it at the City Hall, and selling it to any citizens who can arrange for its cartage to their homes. Other cities have taken analogous, or different steps; and it looks as if the cities are becoming vested with the problem.

If that is the case, Victoria ought to examine its position in the light of the known facts. In so far as public distress is concerned the situation cannot be ignored, and something will have to be done about that. If labor shortages are the cause of the lack of fuel deliveries, why cannot the armed forces of the Crown be used, as is now suggested, in an emergency which is affecting the health of the people, and directly so? In 1916, when the city was snowed in, it was the army that dug it out again. The men were not only asked to help, but turned to with a will and did yeoman service in relieving the emergency then.

If delivery of fuel from the mines to the cities is the cause of the present dilemma, the navy, perhaps, could find some cure for that. All shipping is now fully under its control, and a very few boatloads of coal could do wonders in relieving the actual distress of the present time. For this seems to be one case where there is small room to stand upon ceremony and search for precedents. There is an actual emergency to relieve. The schools cannot remain closed, people cannot be left to take sick in their homes, while one set of authorities passes the problem backwards or forwards to another. Action is needed, not a year hence, not in sixty days time, but now. We would remind Ottawa, moreover, that in so far as this condition traces back to the manpower policy of the country, the problem cannot be calmly dumped on the municipalities without any help from the Crown. The current proposal that the army be used in wood distribution in Coastal areas will be watched with interest, and Premier Hart is to be commended for taking the matter up.

GERMANY'S DILEMMA

For nearly two years now the German army has fought extended campaigns on the Eastern Front, only to be faced with staggering losses in the Winters that followed. At the close of the first campaign, although vast stretches of Russian territory had fallen into German hands, the boasted annihilation of the Russian army had not come, and Leningrad, Moscow and other main objectives still eluded the enemy. Last year a more limited campaign was attempted, involving a main thrust on the southern end of the line. The recoil now is proving even more disastrous for the enemy, for this time a substantial proportion of his best troops remain pinned to the ground and trapped.

Reluctantly Berlin admits that the German army is being faced by "far superior forces" in the field, and that its posts are being yielded in the face of "strong enemy pressure." At the moment, that appears to be a handsome understatement of the facts. The increasing strength of the Russian counter-offensive has placed the whole of the German right in jeopardy. Before Stalingrad the remnants of a large siege force has been totally cut off, and is being slowly annihilated. From the North and East, Rostov is under growing pressure, and may yet be outflanked to the West by the Russian thrust from Voronesh. In the Caucasus, the enemy is in an open and precipitate retreat, and this as Winter nears its close.

It remains to be seen yet if the German army can extricate its southern forces from the double-pincers movement. If, in short, it can avert what once happened at Tannenberg, and the other way around. Much field equipment has already been abandoned by the enemy, and his human losses must have been considerable indeed. This amounts to a strategic, as well as a tactical reverse, for the German High Command. Not only has Russia proved unbeaten, but the invader has been twice mauled, and particularly so in his latest attempt. Nor is the end yet.

All of which shows the wisdom of the United Nations' course, not only in working together as one force, but also in respect of the supplying of planes, tanks and other materials to Russia by the Western members of the group. Convoy after convoy has gone through to Murmansk against all enemy attempts to intercept that route. Great Britain has gone short voluntarily at places so that Russia could be supplied. The United States has routed more actual materials to the Russian front than perhaps to any other belligerent upon our side. This faith and confidence has been fully justified, as we now know. Berlin, one suspects, is also beginning to see the same point.

A MISERABLE FARCE

Censorship of weather news in British Columbia is proving not only annoying but farcical. The precise temperatures and conditions prevailing at United States ports in the Northwest can be reported by radio and in Canadian journals on the same day, but local weather must be omitted until a calendar week has past. Meanwhile a high school student could take the published reports and prepare from them a workable weather map for the whole of the Pacific Northwest.

In Canadian ports one was permitted to say that the schools were closed, that the shipyards were not working, that "traffic problems" had brought congestion of various proportions, but the reason had to be left blank. All around, meanwhile, cities, towns and villages might, and did report what was going on there, and why. When it is recalled that the weather is not a local affair, but on the contrary can only be gauged from reports of innumerable tests made hundreds of miles apart, this procedure becomes farcical in the extreme. And so the public has found it.

It was, perhaps, in recognition of that condition that censorship regulations were temporarily relaxed yesterday, and Canadian newspapers and radio stations on the Pacific Coast were permitted to publish current temperatures and to make a general reference to the weather. Never at anytime have the newspapers desired to embarrass the defence authorities by the publication of intelligence that might prove of use to the enemy. The press has maintained vigilant watchfulness against that. But it has become ridiculous to pretend that newspapers do not see what all of the public knows.

Thus it happens that Coast papers on the Canadian side of the border are today permitted to say that the cities they serve are experiencing the same weather that has been openly reported everywhere in the region for the past week. Thus it is, too, that attention can be called to the suffering and distress that have arisen in some instances from those conditions. There was no need of a week's delay in this matter. A farce is a farce from its first day, and one is led to ponder what type of intelligence has foisted this condition upon the people for a week.

Elsewhere in these columns can now be said what should have been related a week ago about the fuel shortage here. Elsewhere in these columns the cancellation of public meetings can now be told without equivocation. We may speak again of our schools, our shipyards and our fuel bins. The true function of a newspaper can be resumed, and with no more help to the enemy than at any period since this global conflict began more than three years ago. Censorship, for once, has caught up with the facts. It was high time.

MOVING TOWARDS CLIMAX

The continued flight of Rommel's forces in North Africa yesterday, taken in conjunction with German demolitions in Tripoli and renewed Axis efforts to force open a coastal route of escape in Tunisia for the fleeing remnants of his army, all point to developments shaping towards a climax in the campaign. As it appears now, Rommel is preparing to abandon Libya, as he did Egypt, without offering any formidable resistance to the triumphant march of the British Eighth Army.

In short, the Afrika Desert Corps is finished as a fighting unit, and what the enemy is striving for now is to save as many of the tattered remnants of the once proud army as may find their way in flight through Tunisia, to join the Axis garrisons at Tunis and Bizerte. That was the meaning of enemy tank charges on Fighting French troops in Southern Tunisia yesterday: the salvage of whatever was possible from a forlorn and lost hope.

No higher tribute could have been paid by the enemy to the British Eighth Army, which had turned the enemy out of each successive stronghold, and harried him by air for more than 1,000 miles. Though Rommel's remnants may perhaps win through to the encircled Axis posts in Northeastern Tunisia, that is not the only junction that is about to take place. Close behind it will be the junction of the British Eighth Army with the British First Army, with the men who served in the retreat from the Lowlands and at Dunkerque. That will be an historic meeting, precedent itself to a greater one when the United Nations push the enemy off the last of Africa's soil.

A GLEE FOR WINTER

Hence, rude Winter, crabbed old fellow,
Never merry, never mellow!
Well-a-day! in rain and snow
What will keep one's heart aglow?
Groups of kinsmen, old and young,
Oldest they old friends among;
Groups of friends, so old and true
That they seem our kinsmen too;
These all merry together
Charm away chill Winter weather.

What will kill this dull old fellow?
Ale that's bright, and wine that's mellow!
Dear old songs for ever new;
Some true love, and laughter too;
Pleasant wit, and harmless fun,
And a dance when day is done.
Music, friends so true and tried,
Whispered love by warm fireside,
Mirth at all times all together,
Make sweet May of Winter weather.

—Alfred Domett.

Shame is a feeling of profanation. Friendship, love and piety ought to be handled with a sort of mysterious secrecy; they ought to be spoken of only in the rare moments of perfect confidence—to be mutually understood in silence. Many things are too delicate to be thought—many more, to be spoken.—Novalis.

What is mine, even to my life, is hers I love; but the secret of my friend is not mine!—Sir Philip Sidney.

Leisure is time for doing something useful; this leisure the diligent man will obtain, but the lazy man, never.—Benjamin Franklin.

Note and Comment

By SANDHAM GRAVES

Everybody blames the censor, who after all is doing a national job, and a somewhat thankless one at that. While this is not to uphold all that censors have done, or even left undone, it is to point out that censors are human, too. They have homes and families. Their children love them. In their private capacities as citizens, they must suffer like the rest of us—not that many people in Canada have really suffered yet. Far from it, indeed. Yet, the censors can also do us some good, though perhaps it is too much to expect that they will always be given credit for it.

A case in point has been the weather of last week. We are permitted to say now that it has been cold in Victoria, as not a few people suspected. The point is that because we did not know just how cold it was, we did not suffer to anything like the same extent as if we had known the real facts of the case. Because thermometers are not yet a universal household furnishing, there were some people who said it was a cold snap; shrugged their shoulders and let it go at that. If they had counted the degrees of frost, however, they would never have let it go at that. So there, at least, the censors helped up.

Mind you, there were some of us who had our suspicions. Many a man who found that his furnace temperature was giving very little result upstairs heard about that from the family. Some families took in milk that was frozen for two inches down into a quart bottle. Others found butter was not spreadable. Paddy Wirehair, for instance, brought his mat upstairs, by himself. His look was more than enough to say that the cellar, at least, was "impossible."

A distinctly wartime feature of the occasion was the manner in which people helped one another. This department saw many a bundle of wood and many a bucket of coal on its way to being delivered somewhere else, where it was more needed. And this department delighted in that. It shows that in adversity human beings stand together, as indeed they should. For all of the weather, many a human heart was beating warmly; only encouraged, you might say, by the chill north wind.

The children, perhaps, got the best of the bargain. The schools closed, and sleighs came out. A whole generation of youngsters who had never ridden a sleigh before had their first, thrilling experience. It was a little disturbing to find the girls better at it than the boys, in some instances. But, maybe, they were old hands at sleighing with one or even two snows to remember before. One young man was pulled into town on his sleigh by a large dog; and, companionably, put the dog on the sleigh and pulled it home. But if parents had really seen the thermometer, there would have been no sleighs and no children, and, justly, we should thank the censor for that.

We have got it the other way around now, and one feels that that will be very bad for us. We shall watch the thermometer go down, and shiver because we are watching it go down. We will "Oh" and "Ah" over every single drop in the mercury, and there may still be a few of them to come. We shall stop every hour or so to take our own civic pulse, as it were, and feel far more miserable for doing that. For if there is one thing worse than being cold and not knowing how cold, it is in being cold and knowing to a degree just what the weather has done to us. And this time we cannot blame the censor—we will have done it to ourselves.

SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

Sir,—As a visitor from Vancouver I am only too glad to state that it was a tremendous thrill for me to visit the rehearsal of the Victoria Symphony Orchestra on Tuesday evening. This was especially so because such a large proportion of the orchestra consisted of men from the navy and army.

The City of Halifax, with approximately the same population as metropolitan Victoria, has managed to maintain an orchestra of over seventy pieces for many years and the string section is especially good, the violin section alone comprising at least twenty-five members.

The City of Victoria, with such a background of culture, should surely be able to maintain a symphony orchestra. There may be people in this city who mistakenly suppose that the members of the orchestra give so much time and effort just to entertain a patronizing public in one or two concerts. I am sure that this is an entirely mistaken idea. These artists give of their time through a love of music, and it is not enough to merely support the concerts through attendance. The orchestra should be given tangible assistance through financial help. The purchase of scores, and many other items involved in the maintenance of an orchestra require considerable sums of money, and concert receipts cannot be expected to provide any surplus to take care of such expenses.

The maintenance of this orchestra is a challenge to the cultured people in the city of Victoria, for if through lack of support it is not made to endure, its most accomplished members will end by gratifying their desire for symphonic work by migrating.

The city is particularly fortunate in having Mr. Koudsen in its midst. Most people fail to realize the back-breaking work involved in the building up of such an orchestra by a conductor. In the early days when Dr. Stock began with a skeleton orchestra in Chicago, it was hardly the size of the present Victoria group. His devotion, plus unstinted public support, built that orchestra up to its present position. Victoria can do the same in a more modest way, if it gives Mr. Knudsen and his musicians tangible support.

After hearing the rehearsal referred to above, I can guarantee that the coming concert will be a treat to music lovers.

A. RUSSELL MARK.

Vancouver, B.C., January 20, 1943.

WOULD LIMIT AREA

Sir,—I do not think the dim-out is necessary, that is all over the city. They could have restricted areas that face the sea. These could be dimmed out if need arose, but they do not have to dim-out remote places, where a light couldn't be seen from the sea. I do not mean to have a glare of lights, just enough so as to avoid accidents.

H. W. HARRIS.

2709½ Fifth Street, Victoria, B.C., January 20, 1943.

TWO PROPOSALS

Sir,—For years Vancouver Island and especially Victoria have been urged to develop the possibilities of their wonderful climate, scenery and chiefly the favorable position this island holds on the Pacific highway of international sea-borne trade for the future.

But it seems as if our local city councils are always composed of men with narrow vision, and too much interested in local real estate preserves for their own advantage, to be able to work out schemes of industrial development and Island settlement schemes of any real advancement. After all, what is in a name, except what we put into it or what we make it to stand for, and if there is any glory in the name Vancouver, that city has made it for itself.

My idea would be that we on this island change the name to prevent confusion, and get all legal preparations made to change the name Vancouver Island to Victory Island when the war is finished and peace has been restored.

Let us begin right now to get our people united in our decision to celebrate the cessation of war and declaration of peace by arranging with the Federal Government to have the name of this Island changed to Victory Island or Peace Island or Gateway Island, to mark the great historic event in our local history.

Another suggestion which I would like to be considered by the city and municipalities is to offer the gift of a reverted city lot to every overseas soldier, naval and air force member who is serving in this war and who left from or belongs to the City of Victoria.

The large number of reverted lots [illegible] by any persuasion be called a good advertisement for the city, and the gift to overseas servicemen would encourage them in action on the field.

Vancouver to Have Steel Plant—The Province today has a dispatch from Victoria which says there is an intimation that Vancouver might become the headquarters of a large electrical smelting and steel plate industry, and enter into the world's competition for steel shipbuilding "on the same basis as Belfast and Glasgow."

Don't Do It—During the present cold snap householders are given to allowing their water taps to run all night. The register at the City Hall last night showed thirty-six pounds pressure—about half of what it ought to be. Should a fire break out there is danger ahead. If the taps are left running, to turn the water off at the street tap accomplishes the same object and saves water.

Public Meeting—A requisition to the Mayor to call a public meeting in the theatre on an early day, respecting Confederation, is in circulation and is being numerously signed. We are glad to see an interest manifested by the people in a matter which most peculiarly pertains to their province to act upon, for we are well assured, from the experience had in the Confederation of the Eastern Provinces, that no terms of union will be acceptable to Canada that does not either emanate from the people or be by them confirmed.

Church Group in Cumberland Meets

The parishioners of Holy Trinity Church, Cumberland, held their forty-sixth annual meeting on Tuesday night. The vicar, Rev. A. Bischlager, was chairman and during the evening announced the re-appointment of W. P. Symons as vicar's warden for the ninth successive year.

The wardens reported all obligations of the past year had been met in full and that there was a small balance in hand. They also said that over $300 had been subscribed in response to the Christmas appeal.

Mr. Bischlager expressed his appreciation of the welcome extended to Mrs. Bischlager and himself when they arrived in Cumberland to succeed Rev. E. Linfoot, who is now an army chaplain. He also extended encouragement to the parishioners in facing a heavy year in which the replacement of the vicarage, destroyed by fire last Summer, would play a big part.

Church officers elected for the ensuing year were as follows: G. E. Apps, re-elected people's warden for the twenty-second year; church committee, Mrs. T. D. Leyland, Mrs. G. J. Richardson, Mrs. H. Bryan, T. H. Mumford, W. Clark, G. A. Tarbell and G. B. Stephenson.

For the missionary committee: Mrs. R. A. James, Mrs. L. H. Finch, Mrs. T. H. Mumford, Mrs. G. E. Apps, Mrs. G. B. Stephenson and Mrs. G. A. Tarbell; ruridecanal conference, Mrs. E. M. Robinson and Mrs. S. Jones.

Delegates to the synod, W. P. Symons and George E. Apps; alternates, Mr. Mumford and Mr. Tarbell. The parishioners also elected Rupert Shaw as auditor.

After the business of the evening was concluded the 1942 committee served refreshments.

Observation Car

By G. B.

From "What Are We Going to Do With the Germans," in PM: "The last peace, the stepping stone to this war, was based on the strange military fact that the German armies were not destroyed, routed and chased back to Berlin by the supposedly victorious Allies, but were permitted to lay down their arms and retire in order. Both the German people and their soldiers were spared the object lesson of victorious conquering armies marching into Berlin. To the professional militarists of the German army, it was not total defeat but a breathing spell during which they could reorganize and re-equip for a renewal of the fight at some later date. This time a permanent and lasting peace must be built on utter and complete destruction of the German army and complete occupation of the Reich by armies of the United Nations. Soldiers must roll into Berlin, which has not known since 1806 what it means to be invaded. Leaders must be hounded back to face their people in total defeat. Germany must be purged of the Nazi ruling clique either by the German people themselves, or by international trial. Germany must be completely disarmed. The framework for a new world order should be set up now while the great nations of the world are fighting in the common cause. The first step should be the creation of a stronger union among Great Britain, United States, China and Russia." . . . One of the alderman showed on Thursday that his heart is in the right place. He was approached by the owner of a large building at 6 o'clock in the afternoon and informed that only enough fuel existed to operate the furnace and hot water plant for an hour or two. "I cannot let my tenants freeze. Can you possibly help me?" the owner entreated. Within ten minutes the alderman located a truck owner and a man in the country who was willing to sell two cords of wood. The three parties got together, and the tenants of the building spent a comfortable night. We also heard of a woman aged seventy years who sat up all the same night stoking the furnace in order that her boarders would not face discomfort.

FOR DEEP BLUE EYES

ASHFORD, England (CP)—A Christmas parcel was sent by this Kent town to the "sailor with the deepest blue eyes" in H.M.S. Albacore, the town's adopted ship. The townspeople don't know yet who got it.

WASTE PAPER WANTED

LONDON (CP)—Waste paper is so urgently needed in Britain that householders have been asked to search their cupboards and bookshelves anew and send to salvage authorities any books not considered worth keeping.

This Week of War

By MAJ.-GEN. SIR CHARLES GWYNNE

LONDON, Jan. 22 (CP)—The Russian offensive continues with amazing uniformity and success.

The army that has been operating to achieve the relief of Leningrad now can undertake offensive action; forces that for so long have been engaged in maintaining their key position at Voronesh probably will extend their front and those who were held at Millerovo and other bypassed centres of resistance can add their weight to the drive on the Donets Basin.

NAZI DEFENCES BROKEN

One of the most remarkable features of the offensive is the unbroken series of successes in overcoming strong-fortified German positions.

In view of the admitted strain of Axis manpower how will Germany attempt to meet the Russian onslaught? Normally there are three courses open:

1. To shorten the front by withdrawing.
2. To stand, fighting grimly for every foot of ground in the hope of wearing down the violence of the attack.
3. To order a general delaying retreat with the object of regrouping reserves for a counter-stroke—this is to turn the situation into one of manoeuvre rather than one of static defence.

I believe the second course will be adopted, coupled only with such withdrawals as become necessary to avoid specific disaster. The success of the Russians in breaking down even the most obstinate resistance and in repelling counter-attacks must shake German confidence, but the enemy probably still hopes that the offensive will exhaust itself or, at least, that German troops will be able to hold on without complete disaster until the Spring thaw in March and April brings them temporary respite.

RETREAT IN CAUCASUS

Immediate prospects opened up by the Russians' successes are important. Total annihilation of the German Sixth Army in the near future—it may only be a matter of days—seems inevitable. Rejection by the commander of the Sixth Army of the Russian terms of surrender was correct, for every day he can keep railways in the Stalingrad area alone and continue to engage powerful Russian forces may have an important effect on the general situation.

It seems probable that, in order to avoid further catastrophe, the whole of the German armies in the Caucasus will be withdrawn across the Don River. The most recent extension northwards of the Middle Don offensive has made such rapid progress and has shattered so completely the opposing force that it is bound to have further important results. In fact, there are few points on the whole of the vast front where the Germans can feel secure.

IN NORTH AFRICA

The speed and power of Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery's follow-through in North Africa fully justified the pause he made for re-organization.

In the long run it is probable the commander of the Eighth Army gained rather than lost time and it may have misled Rommel into postponing his retreat too long.

Glancing Back Twenty-Five Years—The former German warships Goeben and Breslau, taken over by Turkey early in the First Great War and maintained in the Black Sea with their German crews, tried to reach the Aegean Sea on January 20, 1918. They sank the British monitors Raglan and M-28 and then met disaster in a mine field near the entrance to the Dardanelles. The Breslau, a light cruiser, was sunk and the battle cruiser Goeben beached after hitting a mine. Finally the Goeben was refloated and got back to Constantinople.

Tabernacle Has Successful Year

The largest gathering on record attended the annual business meeting of Glad Tidings Tabernacle, 842 North Park Street, on Wednesday night. The Pastor, Rev. E. W. Robinson, presided as chairman.

Reports given by all branches of the work were most encouraging, and included the Sunday School, Young People's Society, Branch Tabernacle, the Missionary Society, the Dorcas group and the hospital visiting committee. Reports were also given of the work carried on in the Aged and Infirm Women's Home, and a splendid account was given of the number of parcels packed and shipped to the armed forces by the Red Cross and active service parcel branch of the Tabernacle.

The financial statement was presented by J. A. Wild in the absence, due to illness, of the treasurer, E. R. Goodwyn. The report showed a decided increase over last year with total receipts amounting to nearly $13,000, the freewill missionary offering being $3,058. The building fund report showed that the purchase price of the building has been paid, the balance owing amounting to that of the improvements made on the building.

George Johnston, a member of the official board of deacons, was made an honorary life member of the board and A. F. Craddock was appointed to fill the vacancy.

The time used is Pacific Standard for the 120th Meridian west. It is counted from 0 to 24 hours, from midnight to midnight. The figures for height serve to distinguish high water from low water. Where blanks occur in the table, the tide rises or falls continuously during two successive tidal periods without turning.

To find the depth of water on the sill at the Esquimalt Drydock at any time add 30 feet to the height of high water as above given.

Rubber, like petroleum, is chemically a hydrocarbon.

According to Culbertson

"Dear Mr. Culbertson: This will probably sound like a gag to you, along the lines of the ever popular cartoons, but it's dead on the level.

"I am that lowest form of army life, a second lieutenant. What's worse (this is the believe it or not part) on my last furlough I had to play bridge with the colonel. Not only that, I cut him as partner rubber after rubber instead of having him as an opponent, which would have been a pleasure. Along came this deal, and I came within a jump bid of being court martialed."

"The bidding, with both sides vulnerable was short and sweet. North bid one club, the colonel over-called with one spade, South over-called him with one no trump, I passed, and North promptly bid three no trump. Everybody passed although I must admit that the colonel snorted a little bit on his turn.

"Now I come to the blackest page in history. (The colonel later told me that it was guys like me that were the true fifth columnists.) I opened—you've guessed it!—the king of hearts!

"Now I ask you, Mr. C., could I tell that that idiot sitting South was eight spot high in spades? Was my lead really bad or just unlucky? It certainly looked like a pretty good suit, that heart suit, with the diamond king as a possible re-entry."

I am extremely loathe to inject myself into a melee involving military protocol, but justice is justice, colonel or no colonel. My distraught correspondent was perfectly right to open a heart under the circumstances. If the colonel's spade suit was so strong or solid that he could afford to insist on a spade lead, it was up to him to double the three no trump call. Obviously, that action required two-directional nerve. He would have to find West with the spade to open, and he would have to find North, not South, with the spade ten, but surely a colonel should not ask a subordinate to run greater risks than he himself is prepared to assume.

Mayor Investigates Reasons for Dim-Out

Andrew McGavin Has Interview With Premier John Hart and Plans to Confer With Major-General Potts This Morning

ACTING on the advice of Premier John Hart to the war emergency committee yesterday afternoon, Mayor Andrew McGavin will interview Major-Gen. A. E. Potts about dim-out regulations at 10 o'clock this morning. Major-Gen. Potts is G.O.C. of an army division.

Mayor McGavin made the following statement after a conference with the Premier, which was also attended by Aldermen W. Lloyd Morgan, Archie Wills and John A. Worthington:

"I informed Premier Hart, who is head of the Provincial Civilian Protection Committee, that shipyards, lighthouses and navy and army depots were a blaze of light at night while citizens were forced to grope around in the dark. I said we were given a hazy reason of submarine danger for present onerous dim-out regulations, and pointed out that lighthouses alone would serve as a perfect guide to any enemy craft.

NO DIM-OUT RULES

"I mentioned that Port Angeles and Honolulu had no such dim-out regulations as those imposed on Victoria. I stated we had been penalized since November, yet Vancouver had not been forced to dim out. Premier Hart suggested that I take up the question with Maj.-Gen. Potts, and I urged him to take it up with the Minister of National Defence.

"I told the Premier that Victoria was the best dimmed-out city on the Pacific Coast, but personally I could not see the wisdom of present regulations. I added that authorities never took the War Emergency Committee or City Council into their confidence, and we would like to know just why we have to dim out here while other cities look on and grin," Mayor McGavin stated.

OIL PLANTS IN BELGIUM BOMBED

bombers hit an enemy supply ship in the coastal waters off Stavanger, Norway.

German planes were reported over several districts of Northeast England and over a south coast town early tonight.

Targets in Western Germany last night were not specified, but the Air Ministry said heavy loads of explosives and incendiaries started large fires that billowed through the thick clouds. Pilots on the Ruhr said German night fighters and ground fire were more active than usual. Some bombers had to fight it out all the way home. Gunners reported at least two German night fighters shot down in flames.

Four bombers were lost last night, indicating the raiders did not constitute a great force such as hammered Berlin heavily on Saturday and Sunday nights.

The night raid was the thirteenth of the month on Germany. Attacks also had been carried out on Lorient, major Nazi submarine base on the French coast. The R.A.F. has lost fifty-two bombers in night attacks this month—considerably less than 5 per cent of the craft employed.

VICTORIA SHIVERS IN COLDEST SPELL

though drifts were much deeper in places.

CAUSES DISCOMFORT

Throughout the city householders coped with frozen plumbing, stalled cars, and icy walks. Fuel dealers were besieged with orders they could not fill, and many downtown shops which usually stay open evenings closed their doors at 6 p.m.

Because of the difficulties caused by the cold, only maintenance work was done at the Victoria Machinery Depot yesterday and the day before, and shipbuilders at the yard have been told not to report to work until Monday morning. No outside work was done at Yarrows Ltd. on those days, although shops remained open. Outside gangs will not start to work until the weather improves.

SCHOOLS MAY CLOSE

If there is no change in the weather by Monday the Saanich schools will likely remain closed, it was announced yesterday by John Gough, municipal inspector. Parents and pupils are advised to listen to announcements to be made in this regard on Monday morning over Station CJVI.

Schools of Greater Victoria were closed yesterday and Thursday, partly because of the difficulty of heating buildings, and partly because of the long distances traveled by some of the students, especially in Saanich. Children turned out in numbers at all the best sleighing hills, where the dry snow made an ideal surface for runners.

SYSTEMS ON SCHEDULE

Transportation systems continued to operate close to regular schedules. B.C. Electric sweepers had no trouble in keeping the tracks clear, but tended to slow down the passenger cars slightly, and constant work was required on buses to keep the running gear below the bodies thawed out and in working order.

The Vancouver Island Coach Lines reported all schedules being maintained between Victoria and Up-Island points.

In the event of snow falling to a depth of more than a foot, the Victoria Fire Department is ready to fit some of its equipment on horse-drawn sleds, Fire Chief Alex Munroe said yesterday. The conversion can be made in about one hour, he said.

By The Canadian Press

Cities and towns in nearly all parts of British Columbia are faced with a serious fuel shortage following a week of bitter cold weather which has seen temperatures drop to near record figures in some districts.

A lack of coal, sawdust and wood in Vancouver and surrounding Lower Mainland municipalities caused schools to be closed early this week. Many city residents are entirely out of fuel, with little sawdust or wood to be obtained and coal dealers waiting for shipments to reach the city.

The cold snap struck Vancouver last Saturday and thermometers continued to drop until a near record of 4 degrees above zero was reached Thursday night.

The coldest area apparently was the North Central British Columbia district where temperatures have ranged from 20 to 60 degrees below zero for the past week. Schools were closed at Prince George.

The lowest reading at Kamloops was 25 below. In the Cariboo district, Clinton registered a mean temperature of 44 below, Hat Creek 33 below and Ashcroft 20 below. Penticton, in the heart of the province's tree-fruit belt, experienced a low of ten below, and at Summerland the mercury dropped to 13 below, the lowest reading there since 1936.

The mercury topped zero Friday afternoon for the first time in a week at Kimberley, but dropped to 8 below at sunset, after a week of early morning temperatures ranging from 41 below zero, Monday, to 20 below, Friday morning.

Commercial coal stocks are reaching the non-existent stage there, with trucking difficulties for sawdust becoming worrisome.

Schools had a one-day intermission Monday but have continued regularly ever since. Milk and food deliveries are normal and at least one daily newspaper arriving each day.

Kamloops residents would be taking the present cold snap in their stride if it were not for the fuel shortage. With the lowest temperature registered 25 degrees below zero, it is considerably colder there than in recent Winters but it is by no means a record.

With all supplies of sawdust and coal gone, many householders were facing the necessity of draining pipes and closing their homes. Schools have been closed and church services canceled to save fuel.

The Canadian National Railways made available coal from fuel bunkers, as Mayor George R. Williams, backed by civic authority, stepped in to assist fuel dealers secure a supply of slabwood and sawdust twenty-five miles southwest of Kamloops in the mountains.

Skating on city streets was the most popular method of transportation after ice followed heavy rains last week.

The coal shortage was due in part, city officials say, to the fact that mines usually supplying Kamloops sent their entire output to Vancouver in the first two weeks of January.

Lower divisions in the schools at Ashcroft were dismissed until Monday because of fuel shortage. Many householders reported water-pipe freezeups. The mercury registered a low of 30 below Thursday morning, hovering around -22 all day.

PIPE LINE FROZEN

For the first time since 1928 the pipe line from the dam to the reservoir was frozen in Armstrong, where temperatures ranged from zero to 34 below for the past week. City workmen flumed the water in the creek into the city main to restore water service in a few hours and work is in progress to thaw out the twelve-inch steel pipes on the line. No coal or sawdust is on hand and the supply of seasoned wood is running short.

Six inches of ice covered Okanagan Lake from Penticton north to Naramata, a distance of four miles, hampering movement of railway car barges on the lake. Penticton is experiencing the coldest weather for many years, with the thermometer dropping to 10 below Monday and Tuesday.

Traffic to Princeton from the east is being detoured through "potato patches and hayfields," with the temperature in Penticton hitting 38 below early in the week.

At Summerland a temperature of 13 below was reached on Monday, the coldest experienced there since 1935.

A change in temperature of fifty-two degrees in one week was experienced at Nelson when the mercury slid from 39 degrees maximum on January 15 to 13 below on January 18. Early in the week a blizzard wind built up huge drifts from the thirty inches of snowfall in seven days.

Kaslo has been out of bread for two days and an emergency bakery was attempting to supply needs Thursday night, as transportation to the city broke down. Arrangements are in progress to have a C.P.R. lake steamer take supplies in to the city.

Fuel supply in Revelstoke has been ample up to the present, but coal supplies are dwindling rapidly as the city experienced the coldest weather of the last forty years.

A blizzard blew from Monday to Wednesday, with temperatures ranging from 13 below to 30 below zero. Schools remained open throughout the cold period, which appears to be abating.

The fuel situation kept school children at home in Victoria, with the exception of Victoria College and the Normal School. Reopening of city schools, closed Thursday and Friday, is planned for next Monday.

Little difficulty was experienced with deliveries and transportation in Victoria but the shipyards were virtually immobilized by the cold with only maintenance crews on duty.

Courtenay experienced the coldest night on record Thursday with a temperature of 6 below. Milder temperatures prevailed Friday with an eight-inch fall of snow. All loggers were laid off. No sawdust is available and wood supplies are short but there is plenty of coal.

Logging camps and woods operations were shut down in Powell River owing to freezing temperatures. The fuel situation is acute for many householders and fuel dealers are rationing meagre supply of wood to homes. The high school closed down for one day, Thursday.

Nanaimo experienced its coldest day on Monday, since January, 1935, when temperatures sank to 6 degrees above zero.

Shortage of fuel is the main difficulty as city coal deliveries took second place to Government orders on the two principal mines at South Wellington and Timberlands. Slabwood deliveries from Great Central sawmills near Alberni are maintained. Sawdust is scarce as mills are closed.

Golden's coldest day this Winter was Monday with the temperature reaching 40 degrees below zero. Friday's temperatures ranged between 25 and 35 below zero.

Overflow of river ice on Hedley Road, five miles east of Princeton, made detours necessary.

RATION FUEL

Coal dealers in the three Prairie Provinces last (Friday) night were instructed by the Prices Board not to deliver fuel to any person having ten days' supply on hand in an effort to overcome the acute fuel shortage at many points following the coldest weather in many years.

With no signs of a letup in the cold wave that struck Western Canada earlier in the week, civic officials in Red Deer, Alta., were making plans to move entire families into public buildings. Prince Albert sent an appeal to farmers for wood, and at Lethbridge, Alta., thirty-seven schools were closed because they had no fuel.

British Columbia also was in the grip of a record prolonged cold spell which has crippled transportation and caused hardship due to shortages of fuel and other necessities.

Temperatures ranged from 4 degrees above zero, almost a record low for Vancouver, to 48 below in Northern Saskatchewan. In Southern Saskatchewan and Manitoba temperatures were higher than on Thursday but in Southern Alberta Lethbridge had a 32 minimum temperature and Calgary 28.

The Prices Board, on behalf of the coal administrator in Ottawa, issued instructions at Winnipeg for dealers not to deliver to persons who have ten days' fuel supply on hand. Residents at all points were asked to co-operate during the present emergency.

Mayor G. E. Bruck, of Prince Albert, appealed by radio to farmers to bring spare wood to the city, stating that only one day's coal requirements had arrived in the last three days and bins in several coal yards were empty. Those still with coal were returning it in sacks to customers who brought their own sacks and carried the coal away, he said.

Prince Albert faced the shortage despite thousands of cords of standing wood just forty miles away.

Junius Jonsson, utilities superintendent, said arrangements had been made to open a road to a block of between 4,000 and 5,000 cords of standing wood. "The workers are not available to cut the wood at wages which can be paid under the present wood price ceilings," he said.

In Southern Saskatchewan, Moose Jew reported several dealers without any coal and others with a limited supply to meet the needs for the next two or three days. No new orders for coal deliveries were being taken.

Slight relief came to 200 Red Deer families with arrival of two carloads of coal and a load of wood but many families were in dire need of fuel and were burning scrap wood including fences. Some huddled in homes of friends who still had fuel as the temperature hit 50 below.

The city hall was out of coal and some schools and a theatre have been closed.

Lacombe, a Central Alberta town, reported residents down to their last bucket of coal. Manville public and high schools were closed.

Meanwhile a coal miners' strike continued at Drumheller where fifty-eight miners failed to report Tuesday. At East Coulee, Alta., about 145 miners were on strike at the Atlas Mine.

Low coal supplies in Winnipeg public schools caused the cancellation of evening classes in eleven of twelve schools that were being used by the Manitoba Civilian Defence Committee.

At Vancouver, Harold Winch, British Columbia C.C.F. leader, suggested that idle loggers be called to aid soldiers in cutting wood supplies. Eleven inches of snow had fallen Tuesday and prevented dealers from making deliveries. In Victoria, schools and shipyards remained closed for the second day.

SEATTLE RECOVERING

SEATTLE, Jan. 22 (AP)—Winter life returned toward normal in frost-bitten Western Washington today after the heavy snowfall of Tuesday and Wednesday had virtually paralyzed Seattle's war industries.

The weather forecast held little hope, however, to the folks whose coal bins were nearing the bottom. The weather bureau predicted a minimum of 10 degrees here Saturday morning, with occasional light snow.

Lumber and logging operations were crippled throughout the region.

The Boeing aircraft plants remained the only major war industry idle here today. Employees were ordered back to work there for the day shift Saturday. The closing was attributed to transportation difficulties, primarily.

Major Seattle stores, closed for three days to relieve pressure on the crippled municipal bus and trolley system, also will open tomorrow. Schools remained closed today in many communities.

Shipyards resumed operations here yesterday and the number of employees on the job continued to increase today as transportation facilities returned to near normal, except for a few steep hills. Outdoor work still was impaired.

The snowfall, most of it coming Tuesday and Wednesday, ranged from one inch on Greys Harbor to sixteen and eighteen inches in some parts of Western Washington. The total fall in Seattle was about sixteen inches.

Much of the weather trouble came from broken power lines, but most of them were back into condition today.

The lumbering industry was hard hit because snow forced a shutdown in the logging camps and numerous sawmills ran out of logs. At Longview, the big Long-Bell mill had to close because the logs were frozen too solidly in the mill pond.

The minimum temperature for Western Washington was the zero reading reported from Bellingham for early yesterday. Two shipyards there remained idle.

Train movements in and out of Seattle were delayed from one to twelve hours by difficult travelling conditions. Trainmen described conditions as the severest they have faced in many years in the Pacific Northwest.

Lateness of trains arriving from the East and South left the King Street yards without equipment to make up trains which were scheduled to leave. A crowd of 500 persons, taking the midday train for Portland, had to wait two hours until equipment was available from the northbound train from Portland, which was many hours late.

A.R.P. Activities

District 2—The meeting to have been held on Monday night has been canceled.

OFFICE HOURS SET OUT

Hours of general attendance of employees in certain Provincial Government offices are set out in The British Columbia Gazette. SQUADRON OFFICER KATHLEEN O. WALKER

OTTAWA, Jan. 22 (CP).—Squadron Officer Kathleen O. Walker is a flying penguin—and that's a phenomenon even in the R C A F

A penguin, in air force-ese, is a member of the R C A F whose job keeps his feet on the ground Technically, Mrs. Walker, not being a member of air crew, is a penguin. But in the past five weeks she's flown 8,000 miles up and down Canada and that's no mean feat in any penguin's language

Mrs. Walker has been having a look-see at her 8,000 airwomen and officers stationed at air stations and R C A F headquarters all over the Dominion. And she looked at a lot of happy girls and women when she was away.

"Yes, that's one thing that struck me," she told a Canadian Press reporter, "how happy all the girls are particularly out on stations—and the lonelier the station the more fun the girls seem to have. One girl actually cried when she was posted away from Gander, Newfoundland."

Canada's top airwoman leaned back in her chair for a minute and shook her crisp black-haired head reflectively.

"As a matter of fact," she said, and her blue eyes smiled, "sometimes I think I'd like to be out on a station myself working in a hangar or cleaning up aircraft or maybe up in the control tower. I like just being around planes."

And that's the kind of person Mrs Walker is. She's sold on the air force She's sold on doing a job for her country and she doesn't seem to care a whoop for the two wide stripes and a narrow one on her sleeves. She seems the kind of person who would have joined up anyway, even if she hadn't been appointed officer commanding.

FAMILY TREND

If planes can get into the blood stream, Mrs. Walker probably has a whole squadron in hers. Her two brothers are in the air force, Air Vice-Marshal G. V. Walsh and Squadron Leader N. J. Walsh. Her sister is Assistant Section Officer Florence Walsh.

Mrs. Walker is the widow of Group Capt C. C Walker, of the permanent R C A F, who died early in 1941. Then the Women's Division came along and Mrs. Walker joined. She said it helped a lot to be able to carry on the job her husband had started.

The Walkers had no children, but now "I think 8,000 children are enough for any one woman," Squadron Officer Walker smiled

Life was very gay and happy for the English-born Kathleen Walsh who grew up in Montreal in a whirl of parties, skiing and golf. But even in the carefree days before her marriage in 1935 she liked to take time off from fun to do something for other people. She ran a Junior League camp for underprivileged children in the Laurentians, and when the war came led the Ottawa branch of the Red Cross Transport Corps.

She made such a good job of that that when Canada patterned a Women's Division of the R C A F after Britain's W A A F.'s, Mrs. Walker was the first woman commissioned. In fact, she was the first Canadian woman to hold the King's Commission in the armed forces of Canada

Her Work Boosts Fighting French; Is Proud of Them

OTTAWA, Jan. 22 (CP).—Elizabeth de Miribel, whose mission in life is promoting the interests of the Fighting French in Canada, could probably sell ice to Eskimos.

She's good looking, has a cute accent and throws every ounce of her Latin fire into France's fight for freedom.

Miss de Miribel is an expert horsewoman. She'd make a fine Joan of Arc Actually the De Gaulle banner under which she wages her battles is the two-headed cross of the Maid of Orleans.

But Miss de Miribel isn't interested in any such nonsense as fiery white chargers. Despite her good looks and her youth—she's only twenty-seven—she is a strictly down-to-business person. It's hard to steer her conversation away from the suffering in her motherland and the brave new world she wants to help to build after the war.

Brown-eyed Miss de Miribel knows a bit about suffering herself. She wasn't in France after the German occupation but she came to Canada to carry on her crusade friendless and penniless, with only a vague knowledge of English. But she pooh-poohs any suggestion that this was a tough assignment.

"Oh yes, I know what it is to be lonely and perhaps a little hungry—but let's not talk about it. Anything I have endured is so little compared with the sufferings of my friends in France."

FIGHTING FAMILY

Miss de Miribel is a soldier's daughter, granddaughter and great-granddaughter and she lives up to it Her great-grandfather was Marshal de MacMahon, president of the French Republic between 1873 and 1879. Her grandfather Gen. Charles de Miribel, and her father was a colonel who fought for France in this war. The father, a brother and four sisters are still in France, and "all I hope is that they're together," Miss de Miribel said. "It's not easy to be here, away from them."

"Sometimes I think I should try to get back. But then I think of the rehabilitation, those grim post-war days. For those I will need my health and strength. I would have neither if I were in Paris It's better that I stay."

"All the things that happened in France under Vichy—they made me very ashamed," she said with an eloquent gesture "Now I am happy, and proud at what my people have done—at the gallant way they have resisted inside France, at the way they are organizing now without thought of party or class. It gives me great hope for the new France."

You'd never know to look at vivacious Miss de Miribel that her shoulders are almost bowed down with university degrees. She's no blue stocking but holds a bachelor of science and languages degree from the Sorbonne, a bachelor of philosophy degree from the Sorbonne, and she studied psychology at the University of Geneva and the Institut Rousseau Des Sciences de l'Education in Switzerland She also holds a teaching certificate from the University of Geneva and worked as a translator and editor from the French Ministry of Foreign Affairs. She was later secretary of the French Mission of Economic Warfare in London and subsequently secretary to Gen De Gaulle.

Her love is children and her chief study is child and social psychology "Before the war I wanted to work with weak children, to help them adjust themselves to their environment," she said

"Now I know all France's children will need special care after the war That is my job. I have many dear friends in France; many more have died for France But I am glad I was not engaged or married to anyone Now I can give my whole life to my work."

GREAT BRITAIN

International education was an important aspect of World Fellowship Week celebrated by the Y.W C.A. recently. A map of the world decorated with seventy blue triangles, representing national or isolated associations, covered the wall of the entrance lounge, announcing a special item for every night in the week

All sections of the association membership took part in the week, a mixed under-twenty section, the senior (i.e., over twenty) group, and a married members' club

The countries which are being studied this session are China (in connection with the United Aid to China Fund), the United States and Czecho-Slovakia, and the majority of clubs therefore demanded speakers and illustrative material on one or more of these three. Members took part in the performance of folk songs and dances, or in a dramatic interlude, "I Hear America," or in setting out exhibits from Poland, China, Fighting France, Yugoslavia, under the expert tuition of a national of that country. One such exhibit portraying one of the Allied countries, was so admirably done that it called forth warm praise and thanks from a minister of that Allied Government.

Speakers were of a number of nationalities America, Australia, China, Czecho-Slovakia, Denmark, Germany, India and Norway were represented by their own nationals with first-hand knowledge of the Y W C A in their own countries

In several big cities, the Y M C A and Y W C A together arranged a service in church with a special preacher The thirty clubs of the London Y W C A. came together on November 15 for a service in Queen Mary Hall. This was led by an American, the preacher was a priest of the Russian Orthodox Church, and a Dutch, English, German and Malayan also took part Some forty foreign guests were in the congregation, who afterwards met 150 club members and leaders at tea

In many clubs, World Fellowship Week made an opportunity for enrolling full members. The service, with its charming candle-lighting ceremony, was carried out in scores of clubs on the opening or closing Sunday of the week terrible for the Nazis. Everywhere the Russians are speeding up the advance and smashing into German positions with irresistible strength. The Germans are nearer disaster in the Caucasus than ever.

Runganadhan, formerly president of the Madras Y W C A. in India, who is now a member of the International Service Committee of the Y W C A. of Great Britain, where her husband is advisor to the Secretary of State for India While traveling with her husband in the United States, Mrs. Runganadhan is speaking at a number of local Y W C A.'s Their tour ends in Canada where they will attend the Institute of Pacific Relations Conference at Mont Tremblant, near Quebec.

What must frighten the Nazi High Command most of all is the superiority of Bolshevik tactics. The Red Army has worked out new fighting combinations, using speed and artillery superiority with unparalleled success. It is not a new Red Army but the same army handled in an entirely new way.

Hedgehog strong points crumble and garrisons expected to hold out for months are overrun in a few days. Red armored columns show extraordinary speed and overtake German convoys with shattering effect.

According to Russian reports, the Germans in the last two months of the Soviet offensive have lost 500,000 men and 8,000 tanks.

With the Eighth Army almost in Tripoli and the last shreds of Mussolini's African empire about to fall into British hands, The Times says that, contrary to reports of American correspondents in North Africa, a junction of what is left of Rommel's force with Axis troops in Tunisia will not make the situation less precarious for the dictators.

However, the Allies aim is to speed up operations to the utmost so as to co-operate with the victorious Russian armies at the earliest moment. The whole Mediterranean campaign was undertaken as a preliminary to more pressing threats to the Axis, and great strategic gains are to be expected from its successful conclusion. It will enable a mortal wound to be dealt elsewhere.

PRIVATE PEGGY MERTTON

DAUGHTER of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Mertton, 1036 Hillside Avenue, who has arrived in the city from Vancouver to spend a few days with her parents. Miss Mertton is shown holding the mascot of the Canadian Women's Army Corps in Vancouver. The proud and haughty drake, who seems very much aware of his distinguished position, poses quite willingly with the Victoria girl. He was presented to the corps by Capt. J. C. MacLean, a veteran of the last war, now living on Salt Spring Island. As soon as a suitable pen has been arranged the drake will be moved to St. Mary's Priory Barracks. As yet the bird has no official name. Miss Mertton will spend several days in Victoria before returning to the Mainland.

PAPUAN CAMPAIGN BROUGHT TO END

New Britain, four-engined bombers flew through a high altitude snowstorm, then dropped as low as 150 feet to sink four vessels totaling 24,000 tons. Direct hits were scored while the planes were in the midst of strong anti-aircraft fire and many searchlights.

Weather on the Rabaul run caused considerable trouble. The big planes, which are hard to manage in tricky weather, encountered thunderstorms, snow, thick cumulus clouds and icing conditions.

Furthermore, the anti-aircraft fire and usage of searchlights have increased at Rabaul as shipping concentrations grew there.

BOMB LAE

Allied planes again hit Lae and Salamaua and the Japanese called at Merauke, Darwin and Milne Bay with no damage resulting.

The Allied triumph announced today was the climax of a series of manoeuvres which rolled the Japanese back over the mountains and caused them to surrender in turn, Gona and then Buna, from which their drive across the mountains began last July.

American and Australian troops carried on this brilliant offensive, while Allied planes blasted attempts of the Japanese to send reinforcements from nearby island bases.

Four Japanese ships went down at Rabaul, whose harbor bottom already held the hulks of many other vessels sunk in repeated raids by Allied bombers.

"In a pre-dawn attack our bombers struck heavily at shipping in the harbor," the communique said of the new raid.

"In an extremely low-level strike, four ships of an aggregate tonnage of 24,000 tons were destroyed. Direct hits on a 4,000-ton cargo ship split and sank the vessel within four minutes. An 8,000-ton transport was left burning as a result of two direct hits and later was seen to explode.

"A 4,000-ton vessel with a lighter moored alongside was hit and sank within twelve minutes, while another 8,000-ton vessel received three direct hits and was left burning with a series of explosions. Two searchlights were extinguished by strafing. All our planes returned safely."

The Allied ground victory, adding up to one of the greatest achieved against Japan in the South Pacific, was recorded in its final action in these words:

"Sananandа—All organized enemy resistance has been overcome. Mopping-up is in progress. Seven hundred twenty-five enemy dead have been found in addition to those previously reported, with many more yet to be counted. (Yesterday's communique had reported the slaying of 150 Japanese). Considerable quantity of enemy material and equipment has been captured, including field guns, trucks and ammunition."

NEW PROVISIONS FOR EMPLOYMENT

regulations at a press conference and issued an explanatory statement in which he said it is proposed to use voluntary methods wherever possible but to supplement them with compulsion where necessary.

The provision that men in callable age groups may be instructed to change their civilian employment will apply to men who have not yet received call-up notices as well as to men who have been granted deferment or been rejected for medical reasons, a Labor Department spokesman said.

He added that, while men granted deferments normally got it because their jobs were considered essential to the war effort, it was conceivable there might be cases where deferred men would be transferred to still more vital civilian jobs.

In a move linking civilian regulations with those of the civilian call-up, the minister is given power to request that persons failing to furnish evidence to their employer that they have not contravened military call-up regulations be dismissed. Persons seeking permits to obtain work who fail to provide such evidence may be refused permits.

CLARIFY CONDITIONS

The new regulations clarify and enumerate conditions under which the registration requiring seven days' notice before the resignation or dismissal of any employee be waived. Construction workers now are included among the exemptions from this provision, but these workers will still be required to obtain permits to take new jobs. General exemptions from the seven-days' notice regulations now also include practical nurses and workers in fish processing.

WINNIPEG, Jan. 22 (CP)—Canadian Pacific Railway officials said today two freight cars were derailed at Corinne, Sask., fifty miles south of Moose Jaw on the Soo line. The derailment did not cause any traffic delays, they said.

PLANE OVERDUE WITH NINETEEN

Service, is now more than twenty-four hours overdue on a flight from Pearl Harbor to San Francisco.

There has been no radio contact with the plane since early yesterday morning when it circled in the vicinity of San Francisco. Fog and bad weather prevented a landing in the area at that time.

"A search of wide land and sea area has failed as yet to reveal any sign of the transport.

"A crew of nine and ten naval officer passengers were aboard the plane."

In the absence of definite information as to the fate of the craft, the navy declined to give out any information regarding the identity of those aboard or to give any details about the flight or the plane itself, except to say that it was a four-engined seaplane.

he is without previous experience in lumbering. Mr. Williamson said the Government sought a man with no direct interest in the industry who would thus have an open mind on the problems of its various branches.

He reported that Britain now is producing 60 per cent of her own lumber needs. Of the remaining 40 per cent, Canada now is supplying 70 per cent. Britain would require 1,000,000,000 feet from Canada in 1943. The British export quota from British Columbia now is 40 per cent of production.

Last year Canada shipped 1,500,000,000 board feet of lumber to the United States—three times the normal shipment. If the shipments this year are 50 per cent less, it would be about all Canada could do in the face of other demands.

Mr. Williamson said one of the reasons for a shortage of lumber in Canada was the failure of the building industry to plan for minimum use of material which before the war seemed in unlimited supply. Government departments were as much to blame as any, he added.

However, efforts now are being made to conserve lumber wherever possible by restricting civilian consumption, revising building specifications and a firm policy to direct lumber to war channels almost exclusively.

Acute lumber shortage prevailed only in British Columbia and there have been no delays east of the Cascades. For that reason Eastern lumber was being used wherever possible for Canadian contracts.

Mr. Williamson told of the efforts being made to ease the manpower shortage in the forest industries by giving a priority on loggers and skilled sawmill workers second only to coal miners and other essential men. Canada's lumber industry shared equally with the American industry in priority on United States manufactured equipment.

Loggers had been offered depletion allowances on taxes. There had been increases in the price of peeler logs.

The timber controller said that during his present visit to the Coast he hopes to confer with all branches of the industry to learn about their problems at first hand.

STEEL STRIKE NEAR AN END

It was not known how this difference between the Government and the union had been resolved.

About 13,500 workers have been idle because of the steelworkers' strike action, and Canada's wartime steel production has been cut by an estimated two-thirds.

It was not indicated in the statement when production in the steel plants might be expected to be resumed.

Text of the statement issued early today follows:

"A joint announcement is made by representatives of the men and on behalf of the Prime Minister that as a result of an exchange of letters and memoranda and discussions which took place today (Friday) between the Government and officials of the United Steel Workers of America, the way seems clear for resumption of steel production at once.

"The details of the agreement of settlement will be communicated to the local unions by senior officials of the union, with a recommendation that work be resumed.

"The Prime Minister and Minister of Justice (Hon. Louis St. Laurent) and the Minister of Labor (Hon. Humphrey Mitchell) and officials of the union worked on the matter until after 11 p.m."

The statement on the anticipated settlement of the strike followed an evening in which it became apparent that the most important negotiations were under way with a view to resumption of steel production.

The Cabinet had started a meeting at noon and it continued until after 8 o'clock. Presumably a new strike-settlement proposal was drafted at that session.

Meantime, union officials conferred with Arthur MacNamara, deputy minister of labor and director of National Selective Service. Later they were joined by Labor Minister Mitchell.

Then, late in the evening, Prime Minister Mackenzie King himself appeared at Mr. Mitchell's office, along with Justice Minister St. Laurent. After they left, union officials, who had gone away for several hours, returned for final discussions which culminated in the official statement.

Splendid Cough Syrup Easily Mixed at Home

It's So Easy! Makes a Big Saving. No Cooking.

To get quick relief from a distressing cough, mix this recipe in your own kitchen. Once tried, you'll say it's your favorite cough medicine, and it's so simple and easy.

First, make a syrup by stirring 2 cups granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. Anyone can do it. No cooking needed. Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup.

Then get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist. This is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, well known for its prompt action on throat membranes.

Put the Pinex into a 16 ounce bottle, and add your syrup. This you make 16 ounces of very efficient medicine, and you get four times as much for your money. It tastes fine and never spoils.

And for quick, satisfying relief, it is splendid. You can feel it penetrating the air passages and taking hold of the cough. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and eases the soreness. Thus it makes breathing easy, and lets you get restful sleep.

Just try it, and if not pleased, your money will be refunded.

Selected Stocks In Higher Ground On Wall Street

NEW YORK, Jan. 22 (AP).—The stock market reverted to selectivity today and, while many industrials went into new high ground for more than a year in the second liveliest session of 1943, profit cashing resulted in a number of recently strong climbers shifting to the minus column.

Dealings were speediest at the opening and gains at midday ran to two or more points for favorites.

The Associated Press average of sixty stocks was up .1 of a point at 42.8, a new top since since October 6, 1941. It was another broad market, 857 individual issues being traded. Of these 358 were up, 230 down and 269 unchanged. Transfers amounted to 883,410 shares against 810,270 for the day before.

Farm implements were well in front as the W.P.B. raised first-quarter steel allotments for the agricultural machinery makers. Encouragement was found in the sale of two Stock Exchange seats for $28,000 each, up $1,000 from the last previous transaction.

Pere Marquette Railway prior preferred dropped 6 points, the preferred was off 1 7-8 and the common down 3-8 as President Bowman warned that dividends on these stocks were unlikely in the near future.

Slipping after posting 1942-43 highs were International Nickel, Pepsi-Cola, Westinghouse and General Electric. Holding in the "new high" division were Deere, Oliver Farm, Montgomery Ward, Associated Dry Goods, Air Reduction, Allied Chemical and Dow Chemical. There was a flurry in Associated Dry Goods as the Lauthien directors voted a fifty-cent dividend on the common, first since 1931.

In arrears were U.S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, Santa Fe, Southern Pacific, Great Northern, Kennecott, Douglas Aircraft, American Smelting, Goodyear and Yellow Truck.

DOW JONES' AVERAGES

Dow Jones' averages closed as follows:

Twenty industrials, 121.99, up .20.
Twenty rails, 28.87, off .01.
Fifteen utilities, 15.76, up .06.
Sales, 883,000.

C.B.C. OFFICIAL DENIES RUMOR

No Attempt Made to Influence Policies, Dr. R. J. Thomson Declares

HALIFAX, Jan. 22 (CP).—Dr. J. S. Thomson, general manager of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, in an address here Thursday stated he wanted "to say as categorically as I can that never, since I took over my duties, have I had the slightest attempt made on the part of any Government official or minister of state to influence the policies of the C.B.C."

Dr. Thomson became C.B.C. general manager last November 2.

Addressing the Commercial Club of Halifax, the former president of the Saskatchewan University declared that "a good deal has been said, sometimes unfairly and often without knowledge, about what is called Government control of radio."

He continued without naming the person of whom he spoke:

"Among my chief distinctions . . . has been that of providing the theme for the 'Swan Song' of an elder Canadian statesman who spent the greater proportion of his last public address as leader of a great political party in demonstrating the wickedness of the C.B.C. in general, and of its general manager in particular.

"It was alleged that we were simply a creation of the Government, providing opportunities for political leaders to ingratiate themselves with the Canadian people through the medium of radio.

"I want to say as categorically as I can that never, since I took over my duties, have I had the slightest attempt made on the part of any Government official or Minister of State to influence the policies of the C.B.C. . . ."

Dr. Thomson said that Prime Minister Mackenzie King, various Ministers and department heads had all come to him with "requests, that in the public interest of Canada, they should inform the public of Canada by making this or that statement."

The general manager said he did not think the Canadian people would "tolerate . . . obstinate interference on his part to such statements. "On the other hand," he said, "I think there is a legitimate place for speakers on diverse points of view."

RECALLS ADDRESS

He said the C.B.C. tried to provide such opportunity, and recalled the recent address of Progressive Conservative Leader Bracken over the national network.

Dr. Thomson said that, "like everybody else at the present time," the C.B.C. is "concerned to promote" the cause of the United Nations. Canadians were "hungry"—for news and he believed "we have established a news service which is second to none in the world."

In this connection, he declared The Canadian Press "has co-operated magnificently."

"For a long time, they supplied us daily, free of charge, with . . . news broadcasts. Even as I speak, The Canadian Press and The British United Press give us their entire service free of charge and only now through the emergence of difficult war conditions have they raised the question of asking any remuneration for the service . . .

"Whatever individual newspapers may do, and they have done much, to vilify the C.B.C. The Canadian Press as a whole has not only served us, but through us the Canadian people, in a manner which is extraordinarily generous."

Dr. Thomson said, while he would not "wish to say" relations with the press were "unfriendly . . . inevitably newspapers realize that a new and vital competitor has entered into a region that they have long occupied."

However, he said he did not believe "the radio operating with the spoken word is ever likely to supplant the medium of the written word. After all, the radio programme dies in its utterance . . . whereas the written word remains."

ADD MERCY FLIGHT

MONTREAL, Jan. 22 (CP). — The Royal Air Force Ferry Command has added a "mercy flight" to a routine that includes delivery of bombers, urgent war material and official passengers.

Responding to an urgent request from the Grenfell Mission in Labrador a big Liberator bomber flew medical supplies to Hopedale and parachuted them to a post where serious illness had broken out.

Cheery waves from mission officials after they retrieved the supplies and absence of any further requests led Ferry Command men to believe "they got what they wanted and have the situation well in hand."

NOW PRESUMED DEAD

OTTAWA, Jan. 22 (CP). — The Royal Canadian Navy in its 146th casualty list of the war today reported that Engineer Lieut. Duncan Boston Ross, of Toronto, previously reported missing on active service, now is presumed dead as of last November 18.

The farmer's wife had a very sharp tongue, but one day he got a rest from her nagging. A farm horse kicked her so badly that she had to go to hospital for treatment.

During her absence there was an unusual run of callers at the farm.

"It's very nice of the neighbors, especially the men, to call and ask after the missus," the farmer remarked to the servant girl.

"Ay, sir," replied the girl; "but most of them want to know if you'd sell the horse."

Glancing Over Sport

By JOE DELAHUNTY

FROM HERE AND THERE

Working stiffs waiting for street cars or any other kind of transportation on Thursday during the bitter cold morning along Finlayson Road and Hillside Avenue stood goggley-eyed as a fellow with ice skates skimmed along thoroughfares as he headed for his place of business. He was none other than Caesar Finnimore, well-known distance runner for the Y.M.C.A. a few years back. Caesar was always known to try anything once, so this bitter morn he donned the blades and set out for work. He got as far as the corner of Hillside and Douglas and was forced to abandon the skates and hop a street car for the rest of the trip to the city . . . Here's some news we haven't been able to print all week because the censorship board said "no dice": Today's football matches have been postponed because of unplayable conditions, due, of course, to snow-covered pitches . . . Congratulations to Bus Algar, one of the leading goal scorers in the Island Hockey League, for becoming a "proud papa" last Thursday, from this sports department. Talking about Algar, the Army team made a big mistake when they benched him. Bus is not a spectacular player, but he is always in the game, has something above the shoulders and, most important, he can set up plays and get points when they are needed. The move has a flock of hockey fans mystified . . . Charlie Rayner, sensational goaltender for the Navy club, speaking: "I could watch Frankie Brimsek play goal all night long. He has a great eye and when a shot gets past him, it's really a goal. No matter whether Frankie loses by one, two or even three goals, he's the best netminder in the National League and has been for some time. He is always great in defeat or victory."

IN THE MAIL BAG

Dear Joe:

Along with many other fellows in the Army "league" up here, this gent has been following sport news through your very interesting pages in The Daily Colonist.

As there is nothing to do in a camp like this outside of playing checkers and writing letters, the boys who know sport often get together and have discussions on it. There have been different opinions as to whether "Ace" Bailey, former Toronto Maple Leaf star, ever held the National Hockey League scoring race, and also whether or not Roy Worters at one time won the Vezina Trophy. Could you step up with the facts so that the matter can be settled, Joe? Thanks a lot.

Pte. Jim Cooney,
R.C.O.C.,
Terrace, B.C.

Comment: Yes, "Ace" Bailey, the former Toronto sniper, won the scoring honors in the N.H.L. during the 1928-29 season with twenty-two goals and ten assists. He beat out Nel Stewart, Montreal Maroons, by three points, while Cooper, Detroit, the late Howie Morenz, Canadiens, and Blair, Toronto, tied for the next spot with twenty-seven points. The following season Bailey got forty-three points and in 1930-31 he had forty-two, but never won the honors. As for little Roy Worters, who worked for several seasons between the pipes for the New York Americans, he captured the Vezina Trophy in 1930-31 and in 1928-29 he was awarded the Dr. David A. Hart Trophy for being the most valuable player to his club during the season.

I imagine that "league" you are referring to up there must be the Hot Stove League. Thanks for your interest in this paper. I will send along some copies of today's issue with the answers to your queries.

FANS ARE WONDERING

Hockey fans attending the last Army vs. R.C.A.F. fixture at the Willows are at a loss to know what happened to the troops during the battle. Apparently beaten by a better Flyer machine, the soldier players just about lost their heads. They were high sticking, dumping the opposition when there was no need of it. In other words they did everything but play orthodox hockey, especially in the final period. . . . Once Bill Carse, with many years of big league hockey behind him, flipped the puck nearly into the broadcasting booth and he appeared pretty mad when he did so. Carse in the National League was a "good man" and his name seldom showed in the summaries when the penalty list was given out. . . . Joffre Desilets, the former Montreal Canadiens' forward, was on his high horse at times, while several of his men seemed to be packing chips on their shoulders. . . . The airmen won the decision by smart teamwork and the players remained cool when the heat was on. . . . Lou Labovitch, colorful defenceman of the Flyers, received a nasty cut on on the back of his neck and was bleeding profusely when he entered the penalty box with Hugh Sutherland. . . . The boys were ready to square off at times during the dying moments, as a matter of fact they went after the referees at times, but the officials turned deaf ears to their arguments . . . Ed Battell was on the spot at times and so was Lloyd Camyre as players milled around, wondering what the whistle was blowing for. The players concerned knew full well what the calls were all about, but if some of those boys, who have been up in the fastest company in the word, come to the Coast and think they can lay down the law to the boys in "white sweaters," they are barking up the wrong tree. . . . All I can say to the Army club, and you boys from Work Point have just as good a team as any in the league, get in there and play hockey and forget about wrestling tactics when the opposing club is setting the pace, take your defeats like your victories, in the best of spirits, and the fans will love you all the more for it.

Twenty-Five Days Race Meeting Set For Bay Meadows

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 22 (AP).—The California Horse Racing Board today granted Bay Meadows Race Track permission for a meeting of twenty-five days minimum, with the provision it may be extended if the law limiting charity days is amended. Military authorities previously had approved the application. The track will open February 20. Bay Meadows was the only California track to operate last year. Plans for the Spring meeting call for a $25,000 handicap, which is expected to attract Whirlaway, world champion money-winner.

ROBINSON TO FACE WILSON

Important Welterweight Fight Signed for Next Month in New York

NEW YORK, Jan. 22 (AP).—The year's prize welterweight bout featuring Ray Robinson and California Jackie Wilson was signed today but the United States Government has been doing some more important signing, including some of the busiest fighters in the business.

It has signed up both Robinson and Tami Mauriello, who have probably seen more action than any others in their division in the last year.

As a result, Ray's date with Wilson, February 16 in Madison Square Garden, will be his last before he goes into the army. Tami, too, will have just one more trip to the post before he starts doing his slinging in khaki either late in March or early in April.

Promoter Mike announced the Infantile Paralysis Fund will be the beneficiary from the match between the unbeaten Robinson—winner of some 133 fights in a row as an amateur and professional—and Wilson, a sergeant in the army now stationed at Mitchell Field, Long Island. It will be a ten-rounder and will settle at long last, the argument of many "experts" that California Jackie is the only 147-pounder in the world today with a chance of beating Robinson.

Robinson already has taken the first steps toward joining Jackie in the army. He probably will be inducted February 23, four days after his bout with Wilson.

Willie Pep, the New York version of a featherweight champion, has just received his classification papers, and some 2,700 fisticuffers of one sort or another are in the various branches of military service. From here, it would appear that the armed services will wind up with just about all of the young talent developed in the last few years.

Gunder Haegg Has Marks Recognized

Swedish Fireman Credited With Eleven World's Track and Field Records by International Amateur Athletic Federation—American Stars Hang Up Standards

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 22 (AP).—The International Amateur Athletic Federation, working under wartime handicaps, approved thirty-eight world track and field records in 1942. No Canadians were mentioned in the 1942 list.

The sensation of the year was Gunder Haegg, twenty-four-year-old Swedish fireman who hung up eleven new marks at distances from one mile to 5,000 metres. Some of the new standards were improvements on his previous world record times, but he closed the year in possession of the following international marks: Mile 4 04.6; 1,500 metres, 3 45.8; 2,000 metres, 5 11.8; 3,000 metres, 8.01.2 and 5,000 metres, 13 58.2.

Secretary Bob Ekelund, who with President J. S. Edstrom is keeping the federation active even though it has been impossible to hold representative meetings, said today the organization is up-to-date on world records although the slowness of communications makes the job difficult. Both men are Swedes.

(In New York, Secretary Dan Ferris, of the Amateur Athletic Union, said records made in the United States in 1942 and approved by the A.A.U. last December have not had time to reach the I.A.A.F.)

HOLD RECORDS

Fred Wolcott, former Rice Institute hurdler, and Grover Klemmer, of the San Francisco Olympic Club, are each credited with two of the ten standards set by Americans. Wolcott's marks are 22.5 seconds for the 220-yard low hurdles and 22.3 for the 200-metre lows. Klemmer's records are 46 seconds flat for 400 metres and 46.4 for 440 yards, the latter equaling Ben Eastman's international record.

Les Steers' high jump of six feet eleven inches goes into the books, as does Cornelius Warmerdam's pole vault mark of fifteen feet five and three-quarter inches. Warmerdam, however, has since raised the vault ceiling to fifteen feet seven and three-quarter inches. Harold Davis' 10.2 for 100 metres, tying Jesse Owens' world mark, also was recognized along with two relay records made by University of California quartettes—3.09.4 for the mile and 7.34.5 for two miles. Archie Harris' discus throw of 174 feet eight and three-quarter inches also was approved, but it will not get into the books because Adolfo Consolini of Italy later boosted the distance to 174 feet ten and three-quarter inches.

Other marks recognized as of October, 1942, included:

1,000 Metres—2.21.5 by Rudolf Harbig, Germany.

20,000 Metres—One hour, three minutes, 1.2 seconds by Andras Csaplar, Hungary.

Four-Mile Relay—17.02.8 by Brandkarens Sports Club, Sweden.

3,200-Metre Relay—7.30.4 by German National Team.

6,000-Metre Relay—15.42 by Brandkarens Sports Club.

YANKEES BUY FIRST SACKER

New York Purchase Nick Etten From Philadelphia Phils for 1943

NEW YORK, Jan. 22 (AP).—New York Yankees moved today to fill their gap at first base by obtaining big Nick Etten from Philadelphia Phils for an undisclosed amount of cash and two players from their Kansas City farm in the American Association—Pitcher Allen Gettel and First Baseman Ed Whitnet Levy.

Etten, a left-hander power hitter who batted .311 for the Phils in 1941 but subsided to a .267 last season, will take the spot left by Buddy Hassett's entry into military service.

Gettel is a right-handed pitcher who won twelve and lost eleven last year for Kansas City. He had been in the Yankee organization for three or four years.

Levy, who is six feet five inches tall, started the season at first base last year for the Yankees, but lost the job to Hassett and was returned to Kansas City, where he batted .305.

Sports Roundup

CONTEST DEPARTMENT

Branch Rickey says he'd be willing to give a lifetime pass to Ebbets Field to anyone who'd come up with an acceptable emblem symbolizing "Dodgers" that could be worn on Brooklyn uniforms and used in the ads . . . What he'd like is something like those cocky red birds the Cardinals use . . . But when he sprang that on the baseball scribes, they told him, "If you ever get one Brooklyn 'bird' you won't want two."

SHORTS AND SHELLS

Race horses may have to learn to go barefoot before long, according to Arthur Cragin, vice-president of the International Union of Journeymen. With steel and aluminum frozen, there's only enough material on hand to make plates for about eight months.

Pointing out that the Athletics will have a pretty fair place to train this Spring, B. Vetter, of Wilmington, Del., and Duke U., reports that his home town had three championship teams last year—the pro football Clippers, the Blue Bombers in pro basketball and the Blue Rocks in baseball . . . Sounds like just the place for Connie Mack to start singing the blues.

Canada's World Champion Promised to Give Jackie Wilson Return Bout for Crown—Bout Doubtful as Callura Has Enlisted in The Navy—Wilson Set for the United States Army

By CHARLES EDWARDS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

TORONTO, Jan. 22 (CP).—Jackie Callura, twenty-nine-year-old Hamilton fighter, won the world featherweight title from from Pittsburgh Jackie Wilson last Monday. He agreed to give Wilson a return bout. Walter (Hamilton Spectator) McMullen says it is doubtful if the second fight will take place. Callura has enlisted in the Royal Canadian Navy and may be called at any time and Wilson is awaiting a call from the United States Army.

PUCK PATTER

Freckles Little, seventeen-year-old goalie of Niagara Falls Cataracts, got his start in hockey as stickboy with Geraldton Gold Miners in the Thunder Bay senior league . . . Alf Cottrell, of the Vancouver Sun, calls Toronto Leafs' Lorne Carr "The Caspar Milquetoast of the Ice Lanes" because of "the purity of his speech and for the way he keeps his temper tucked under lock and key" . . . Tommy Gorman, of Montreal Canadiens, inspired by the fine play of the defence recruit, Glen Harmon, enthuses, "How about Harmon as the best rookie of the year?" . . . Milton's entry in the Ontario Junior "B" circuit has a couple of players named Scissons and one named Scheral. Grand opera prospects no doubt!

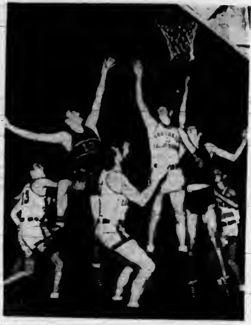
THE EXPERT SAYS:

Twice during this American Hockey League season Louie Trudel of Washington Lions has scored three goals in a single game. Bill (Niagara Falls Review) Gaynon comments: "We have long contended that National League leaders have overlooked a swell bet by allowing such a first-class forward to linger in minor circles. When he was up there with Chicago and Canadiens Louie was playing mighty nice hockey and few players under Frank Calder's awning could match the rangy Trail worker in speed."

INCIDENTALLY

Civil Service took quite a kicking around from the R.C.A.F. in Ottawa's city football league last Fall. Now two Civil Service players, middle wing Louis Schwartz and snapback Shaff Nesrallah, have joined the R.C.A.F. . . . Two of Vancouver's finest tennis players have just received service promotions, Jack Brown as captain with the army at Red Deer, Alta., and Will Pedlar as an R.C.A.F. pilot officer . . . Remember George Young, Toronto swimmer who won the twenty-two-mile Catalina grind in California in 1927? He now lives in Philadelphia, employed by a soft drink firm.

Real Action in Basketball



This speedway shot in a game between U.S.C. and California basketball teams, at Los Angeles, Cal., shows the rugged defence put up around the Bear basket as U.S.C. fought off a stubborn California rally. The Trojans won the game, 39 to 32.

Trio of Important Bouts Are on List

Willie Pep to Meet Allie Stolz Late This Month and Beau Jack Takes on Fritzie Zivic on February 5—Gus Lesnevich Has Date With Melio Bettina on February 26

NEW YORK, Jan. 22 (AP).—Harry Markson hovered hawk-like over his typewriter in his 2 x 4 publicity office at Mike Jacobs' headquarters, which aren't as extensive as they once were.

When the boxing promotion outlook was none too bright several months ago, Mike lopped off a couple of large rooms, including the one where Harry and Walter St. Denis concocted their gate bait. Now their place of business is the little box where Mike used to make the big deals.

Mike had a big corner-office with fat leather chairs and divans, but that was for show. It was the cubbyhole that meant business, and any of the fight managers lolling with elaborate concern in the outer offices waiting patiently would leap to his feet and trot like a puppy at the master's heels as the big boss would amble in, give a faint beckoning nod, and head for the dwarfed room.

Anyway, Harry was busy. It seems no work was lopped off along with the two rooms.

"They talk about the lack of talent," he began. "Do you know that in our next three shows we have the present feather champion meeting a fellow who just missed the lightweight title by a shade; the current lightweight champion meeting the former welter champion, and the accepted light-heavy champion meeting a former light-heavy champion.

COMING FIGHTS

"See, Willie Pep, the feather champion, meets Allie Stolz January 29, then February 5 Lightweight Champion Beau Jack meets Fritzie Zivic, and February 26 Gus Lesnevich, light-heavy titleholder, meets Melio Bettina, who once held that title.

"Sure, I know Pep and Beau Jack aren't recognized by the N.B.A., but who is beating them?

"It makes me sick when they said 'Yeh, but who did he fight?' Pep had some pretty good men against him, too. He's got class. Isn't that right, Dan?"

Dumb Dan Morgan had eased in through the door and was standing with his mouth cocked waiting for an opening to turn loose words.

"That's right, there's no telling how good he is. Mauriello . . ."

"We're talking about Pep," Markson interrupted. Dumb Dan wasn't even thrown off stride.

"Pep's a fine fighter. He's still green, though. You might say he won the title before he got his experience."

"This talk of duration champions makes me sick," continued Harry, becoming ill a second time. Double pneumonia, no doubt. "Why shouldn't fellows like Pep and Beau Jack be recognized? Is there anyone in the service who could beat them?"

Dumb Dan had been silent as long as possible.

"This Mauriello," he broke in. "I like him. It would be interesting to check back and see how many times he's come off the floor to win . . ."

Just a quiet day at Jacobs' Beach.

BALL PLAYERS TO TRAIN IN SOUTH

SARASOTA, Fla., Jan. 22 (AP).—There will be some big league Spring training in Florida after all.

Members of the Winter baseball colony here plan to stage their own pre-season conditioning programme before going north to join their clubs, which abandoned Florida training sites because of travel difficulties, it was disclosed today by John Cooney and Paul Waner.

"We are going to get together about the first of March to start working out," said Cooney, "and possibly continue until a couple of weeks after the clubs start their Spring training in the North.

"We think that by working out in the warm climate here first we will be in better condition than if we waited and started out with our teams in the North."

Cooney, forty-one-year-old outfielder and first baseman, and Waner, forty-year-old outfielder who at his best was one of the National League's greatest hitters, said there are nearly enough players here for a team and more are expected later. The two veterans were signed up by Brooklyn Dodgers yesterday shortly after their release by Boston Braves.

"We even have an umpire," said Waner, referring to Butch Henline, former catcher who is wintering here.

Other players here include Pitcher Paul Derringer, of Cincinnati Reds, Heinie Manush, former American League batting star now managing a minor league club; Billy Sullivan, of Brooklyn, and Johnny Moore, of Los Angeles.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22 (AP).—The New York baseball writers announced tonight that Wendell Willkie has accepted an invitation to speak at their twentieth annual dinner Sunday, February 7. Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker also has agreed to appear on the same programme.

Tonight's Game
8:15—Nanaimo Clippers vs. Navy, at Nanaimo.

No matter how you look at the Island hockey play-off picture, you certainly cannot count the Victoria Machinery Depot puckmen out of the running even at this late stage in the league schedule.

After dropping successive overtime battles to Nanaimo Clippers and Army, Coach Art Somers' proteges uncorked unexpected scoring strength last night at the Willows Arena and trounced the Royal Canadian Air Force, 12-6, to cling tenaciously to their mathematical chances of gaining a post-season play-off berth.

After being held to a 2-2 stalemate in the opening stanza, the V.M.D. lads hit their scoring stride in the sandwich and final stanzas, firing home five markers in each session for an even dozen tallies.

Flyers, forced to take the ice minus Stan King, Bobby Kirk and Hal McBride, all on the injured list, hit an even stride in their scoring, pushing the rubber behind Laurel Harney for a pair of tallies in each period.

HARNEY BRILLIANT

Flyers did plenty of attacking and would have been much closer except for the fine performance turned in by the V.M.D. net custodian. Harney looked more like the goalie who turned in some grand exhibitions for the Bapcos last season, and certainly was given a hot time by the Flyers.

There were times when the R.C.A.F. kept the shipyard workers penned in behind their own blue line for minutes at a stretch, and only for the fine work of Harney, would have bagged important tallies. The veteran V.M.D. goalie had fifty-two shots fired his way by the Flyers, and saved forty-six for a good night's work.

Alec Clow, Royal Canadian Air Force goalie, did not look quite so good as in some of his earlier exhibitions, but it must be remembered that his defence was certainly weakened by the absence of Hal McBride, regular rearguard player. Clow was tested thirty-nine times, and beaten for twelve big goals. However, in fairness to the youngster, a number of the goals registered by the V.M.D. snipers were scored at close range and often with the goalie at their mercy.

Coach Art Somers' proteges turned in one of their best exhibitions of the late season's play, with every member of the squad sharing in the great triumph. The line of Connie King, Bus Brayshaw and Maurice Duffy accounted for seven of the dozen markers, and between them picked up fourteen scoring points.

Brayshaw paced the V.M.D. scoring parade with three tallies, while Maurice Duffy, Connie King, Bert Yesowick each registered a pair, and Elton McFadzen, Jack Kilpatrick and "Dutch" Evers came up with singletons.

DUFFY IS LEADER

Maurice Duffy picked up five points and passed Hal Brown, former leader in the individual scoring race, bringing his total to thirty-three. Connie King, smooth-working V.M.D. centre, bagged a quartette of points, and took over second place with thirty-two, one more than Brown.

Andy Gilpin was top scorer for the Flyers with a pair of markers. Wilf Cook, Joe Krol, Lou Labovitch and Harold Burdette each with a single goal, were the other scorers.

V.M.D. picked up most of their goals on breakaways following an attack by the Royal Canadian Air Force, and certainly made their scoring opportunities count. They gave the fans some of the fastest scoring seen at the Willows this year when they registered four goals in one minute and twenty-two seconds of the final stanza.

With the Flyers, it was quite the reverse. They were compelled to attack, sometimes for minutes without a break before pushing the rubber behind Laurel Harney.

At the end of the contest the shipyard workers were "flying" over the ice, while the Air Force lads appeared tired from the work they put in trying to get the disc past Goalie Laurel Harney.

Tonight the Royal Canadian Navy will play Nanaimo Clippers at the Up-Island arena, and Monday the Clippers will return here to keep an appointment with the Royal Canadian Air Force. Monday's fixture at the Willows will commence at 9 o'clock.

With the veteran Ralph Michell setting the scoring pace, West Road senior "B" men's cagers, current leaders in the City League, displayed their old-time shooting form last night at the Victoria High School gymnasium to romp to a 39-22 victory over the V.M.D.

Suburbanites outscored their opponents in each half and after establishing a 21-12 advantage at the interval never once had their lead seriously threatened.

Michell pushed up fifteen points, three more than Joe Bryant, V.M.D.'s ace sniper, and walked off with scoring honors for the evening.

In an intermediate "B" boys' fixture K.V.'s turned back Fairfield, 35-12, and in the curtain-raiser Comets more than doubled the score on the Whippets in a junior girls' game, finishing on the right end of a 41-20 verdict.

SISLER WILL HAVE CHARGE

Former Great First Baseman Of St. Louis to Aid Brooklyn Dodgers

NEW YORK, Jan. 22 (AP).—A system for mass production of ball players will be undertaken by Brooklyn Dodgers this year in spite of the war. George Sisler, one of baseball's great all-time first basemen, is to be a kingpin in the set-up.

Branch Rickey, president of the Dodgers, explained the plan yesterday at a press conference and said that Sisler, who is commissioner of the National Semi-Pro Baseball Congress, will become a Brooklyn scout to lead the search for talent among the sandlotters.

The plan calls for conducting camps and baseball schools all over the country in a manner similar to the programme Rickey installed with great success for St. Louis Cardinals.

"We hope to find some good prospects among the sixteen and seventeen-year-olds.

"We are, in effect, betting that the war is over in two years. If it is, this is a corking good programme. If the war lasts three years, then maybe we are throwing away a year of scouting.

"But I believe in mass production of ball players. Why, in the past, I looked at as many as 3,500 young players in one year."

Rickey said he expects to have nine full-time scouts.

RECLAIM RUBBER FOR FEW ONLY

Ordinary Motorist Must Wait For Peace to Get Any Tires

OTTAWA, Jan. 22 (CP). — The Munitions Department announced today that beginning next month a "limited number" of tires now being manufactured in Canada, under a new process from reclaim rubber, will be rationed to a selected list of vehicle owners who are not permitted under the tire-rationing regulations to buy new tires made from crude.

The release of these reclaim-rubber tires will not help the average private motorist. Since May 1942, some 800,000 vehicle owners have been denied tires of any kind.

"The ordinary motorist will have to wait until the war is over before any type of rubber, whether crude, reclaim or synthetic, can be released to make his tires," said Rubber Controller Alan H. Williamson in the departmental statement.

Permits to buy the new reclaim tires will be issued only to certain vehicles in Class "B" of the tire-rationing categories. Each tire-rationing representative—there are 120 in Canada—will be given a quota for his area.

PRIORITY ORDER

From this quota he will allot reclaim tires for the following types of vehicles, listed in descending order of priority.

1. Passenger cars owned by plant employees who drive their fellow-employees to and from work under the Wartime Industrial Transit Plan;

2 Taxis and "drive-yourself" cars registered with the transit controller;

3. Cars owned by mail carriers under contract with the Postoffice Department;

4. Cars owned by farmers who transport their produce and supplies and do not own a truck;

5. Other Class "B" vehicles in the order of their local importance as determined by the representative in consultation with the rubber control.

ESSENTIAL USERS

Doctors, visiting nurses, fire and police departments, and the other highly-essential users in Class "A" will remain the only vehicle owners entitled to purchase, by permit, from what the department said is a "dwindling supply" of new, crude rubber tires, made before the tire manufacture ban went into effect December 12, 1941.

Owners in Class "C," including certain newspaper reporters, scrap buyers and a limited list of other vehicle owners, are entitled to purchase used tires, but will not be allowed any of the new reclaim tires.

LIQUOR REPORT GIVEN

A report on the recent conference of provincial liquor commissioners in Toronto was submitted to the Cabinet by W F Kennedy, chairman of the British Columbia Liquor Control Board, yesterday.

The Government will study the report in detail before making an announcement, officials said.

LAMOTTA IN FIGHT WIN

DETROIT, Jan 22 (AP).—Jake Lamotta, of New York, scored a six-round technical knockout tonight over Charley Hayes, previously undefeated Detroit middleweight, in a scheduled ten-round fight before 10,000 spectators who paid $21,000—Michigan's biggest gate in two years

Hayes was down for an eight count in the second round before Referee Elmer (Slim) McClelland ended it.

Lamotta weighed 160, two pounds more than Hayes.

NAIROBI, Kenya Colony, Jan. 22 (CP).—Lady Diana Broughton was married today to Gilbert Colville a cattle rancher, at Najura, Kenya. Her former husband, Major Sir Henry John Delves Broughton, died at Liverpool, December 5, eighteen months after he was acquitted of charges of slaying the Earl of Erroll. Sir Henry testified at his trial that he knew of a love affair between Lady Broughton and the earl, and had agreed to give up his wife to the earl.

LAST HOLDOUTS GOING TO WORK

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Jan. 22 (AP).—Eight hundred miners at the Payne Coal Company's Exeter Colliery—last holdouts in a three-week wildcat anthracite strike — voted unanimously today to return to their jobs Monday.

The action came only a few hours after the United Mine Workers local at the No. 7 colliery of the Susquehanna Collieries Company, with 1,600 members, voted to go back to work tomorrow.

Thus ended finally the revolt against leadership of the United Mine Workers which cost the miners more than $2,000,000 in wages, kept $1,000,000 tons of hard coal off the market and won strikers only the assurance that their wage demands would be considered later.

REMOVING BADGES

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 22 (AP).—Travelers reaching Sweden from Germany said here that many Nazis, from officials down to small fry ward heelers, are beginning to remove their party badges from their lapel buttonholes because they are losing faith in victory and fear the consequences. The travelers also said they had witnessed open expressions of protest against the Gestapo treatment of the Jews and had heard Germans denounce the persecution, something they never dared do before.

OMAHA, Jan. 22 (AP).—Fire which buildings Thursday at an internment camp adjoining the Camp Carson, Colo., army training camp caused damage estimated by army engineers at $1,000,000. The buildings were unoccupied and no one was injured.

INSTITUTIONS OF CITY HAVE COAL

Alderman W. Lloyd Morgan States All Buildings Under Council Control Are Heated

There is no shortage of fuel at the Victoria Public Library, it was announced yesterday by Alderman W. Lloyd Morgan, chairman of the City Council fuel committee. He made the following statement.

"Library officials decided to close the building on Friday, 'because of the fuel stortage.' That is entirely incorrect because the library has ten tons of coal on hand, sufficient to last for several weeks.

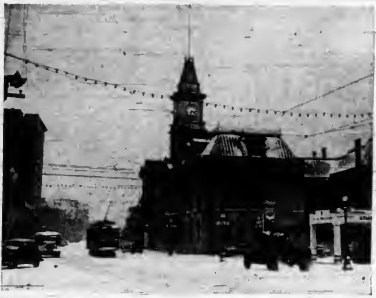
"Due to co-operation of the Kingham-Gillespie Coal Co., Ltd., every city institution has enough coal on hand to cope with any temporary shortage in supplies from Up-Island," Alderman Morgan explained.

PARENT-TEACHER GROUP ORGANIZEO IN SAANICH

E. G. Woodward was named president of a temporary executive selected to head the Tolmie School District Branch of the Parent-Teacher Association when it was organised recently. Other officers are Mrs. L. Pedneault, vice-president; Mrs. Lawson, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. Giles, Mrs. Simpson and Miss G. Bossi, executive.

Mrs. H. A. Beckwith, member of the Oak Bay School Board and of the P.-T.A. movement, addressed the gathering.

Streets Deserted During Cold Spell



THIS picture of a deserted main thoroughfare was not made in one of the cheerless cities of Northern Europe, but was taken at the corner of Cormorant and Douglas Streets, Victoria, on Wednesday afternoon, as a bitter wind and temperatures ranging from 19 to 23 degrees forced pedestrians from the sidewalks. It is possible to publish it today only because of a relaxation of weather censorship regulations announced yesterday. Trade in stores dropped during the prevailing cold spell, and some shops which usually remain open evenings closed their doors at 6 p.m. Garage wrecking trucks, such as that in the right foreground, were kept busy servicing cars damaged suddenly by the low temperatures.

Motorist Fined—A motorist was fined $20 in Oak Bay court yesterday for exceeding the speed limit. One resident was fined $1 and $2.50 costs for possessing an unlicensed radio, and two others were each fined $2 and $1.50 costs for failure to pay road tax.

William Gove paid a $20 fine for exceeding a speed limit of fifteen miles per hour during a dim-out on January 18. Constable Charles Webb testified that he paced Gove's car at speeds up to forty miles per hour. Two men were each fined $1 and $2.50 costs for failing to apply for radio licences.

CAPITOL THEATRE Major Bowes is still finding 'em. Talented youngsters from every walk of life, embro entertainers who astonish with their versatality and who are hand-picked for the Major's touring stage units. The latest talent finds of the popular radio programme all blended into the Major's newest stage show, the Eighth Anniversary Revue which ends at the Capitol Theatre tonight. Included in this unit are Virginia Gull, impersonator; Vivien Vanton, specialty dancer; the Acrobatic Sweethearts troup, and many other clever artists. On the screen Lloyd Nolan is seen in "Manila Calling."

CADET THEATRE The funniest lady in the land is now Jack Benny as "Charley's Aunt," the new 20th Century-Fox comedy ending tonight at the Cadet Theatre. Kay Francis and James Ellison head the featured cast which includes Edmund Gwenn, Anne Baxter, Reginald Owen, Arleen Whelan, Laird Cregar, Ernest Cossart and Richard Haydn.

YORK THEATRE Lovely Betty Grable swings out for all she's worth in 20th Century-Fox's Technicolor musical "Song of the Islands," ending tonight at the York Theatre. The versatile star makes a right-about-face from her dramatic roles in "I Wake Up Screaming" and "A Yank in the R.A.F." to turn the heat on with some South Seas songs and dances. Featured with Betty are Vic Mature and Jack Oakie supported by Thomas Mitchell, George Barbier, Billy Gilbert, Hilo Hattie and Harry Owens and his Royal Hawaiians.

RIO THEATRE Columbia's gay musical romance, "Sweetheart of the Campus," ends tonight at the Rio Theatre. Ruby Keeler heads the cast, which includes lovely Harriet Hilliard, Gordon Oliver and Ozzie Nelson and his band. The lilting love-and-laugh hit, with its tuneful story of a night club that went to college was directed by Edward Dmytryk.

ATLAS THEATRE Hollywood's juveniles, paced by Mickey Rooney, score another "strike" in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "A Yank at Eton," which ends tonight at the Atlas Theatre. Mickey takes part in one of the wildest, and funniest, fight scenes ever filmed, plays football, cricket and a couple of Eton games called "fives" and the "field game," runs a steeplechase, and wears a top hat.

OAK BAY THEATRE Starring Rosalind Russell and Melvyn Douglas as newly-weds with ideas—she wants their marriage to be platonic until they get used to each other—the picture, "This Thing Called Love," which will end tonight at the Oak Bay Theatre, moves from one laughable sequence to another to make one of the season's best comedies.

PLAZA THEATRE When James Dannaldson, who plays the lead in "Jacare," the United Artists release ending tonight at the Plaza Theatre, was in college, he starred in football, track and basketball. He was also known as a good long-distance swimmer. Now, at twenty-six, he stands six feet four and weighs two hundred and thirty pounds. This athletic prowess stood him in good stead during the filming of "Jacare."

FAMED COMMANDO HIT TO OPEN AT CAPITOL

Eagerly awaited by the movie public and Victorians in particular the Columbia film, "Commandos Strike at Dawn," will open on Monday at the Capitol Theatre. Told with all the white-hot fury of men fighting for their homeland, freedom and the women they love, it is one of the most magnificently thrilling dramas of romance and adventure the war has yet produced. Paul Muni heads the cast as a Norwegian patriot who mobilizes his people to wage incessant and unrelenting warfere against the Nazis. The Commando raid which climaxes the film was laid out by Lester Cowan and John Farrow, who had the full co-operation of the Canadian Army, Navy and Air Force. Over a thousand members of Canada's armed forces took part in the picture, which was filmed on location only a few miles from Victoria. Supporting parts are carried by Anna Lee, Lillian Gish, Sir Cedric Hardwicke, Robert Coote, Elizabeth Fraser and Richard Derr.

Real Estate Men Continue Effort To Recall Order

The Real Estate Board of Victoria is continuing its efforts to have the recent rental control order of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board rescinded, it was reported yesterday at the Real Estate Board luncheon in Spencer's dining-room by H. Lethaby, secretary.

The order concerned states that a landlord must give a tenant twelve months' notice to vacate a dwelling.

The board is also negotiating with the Vancouver Real Estate Exchange in the latter's project toward having tax rebates on vacant business property apply as they do on vacant living quarters.

The regional housing committee has been advised of the appointment of Alderman W. H. Davies to represent the board on the committee, and Frank H. Partridge was named chairman of the board transportation committee in place of J. C. Bridgman.

Celebration of Royal Birth to Be Held Shortly

The customary celebration of the birth of Princess Juliana's third daughter by Netherlands subjects of Victoria and Vancouver Island will likely take place early next week, G. W. C. Holland, Netherlands vice-consul, said here yesterday.

Local Netherlanders do not wish to hold their gathering until M. A. Roggen, former consul-general for The Netherlands in British Columbia and now resident of Victoria, arrives here from Calgary, where he is now visiting. There is the added difficulty of subjects reaching the city because of present weather conditions, the vice-consul said.

Mr. Holland, 355 Armit Street, said he would give all information regarding the celebration to any Netherlanders interested in attending.

Saanich Murder to Be Investigated At Police Inquest

AN inquest into the death of Molly Justice, fifteen, will be held in Sands Mortuary at 10 o'clock Monday morning, it was announced yesterday by Chief Josiah Bull, Saanich Police. The mutilated body of the girl was found last Monday night lying beside the Canadian National Railways' track two blocks from her home at 861 Brett Avenue, Saanich. She had been stabbed many times with a knife and struck on the head with some blunt object. Inspector J. F. C. Vance, Vancouver criminologist, left for the Mainland on Thursday night with a number of exhibits, and will prepare a report for Chief Bull. Police believe the crime was committed because of spite or jealousy, by some person familiar with the girl's movements. In the meantime an intensive investigation is being conducted by the chief, Sergeant Eric Elwell and Corporal Cecil Pearce.

Evaporated Milk May Now Be Sold

Stocks of evaporated milk which were frozen on December 28 by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board are now released. This information was received today by the regional office of the board in Vancouver.

Normal sale of this product may be resumed on January 22.

Stocks were frozen with the idea of making a survey of the supply situation and to put a check on excessive buying. Only the sixteen-ounce sizes for general sale were frozen. Supplies were at all times available for infants and children.

Now that the freezing order is removed it is required that sales will be made on an equitable basis. If the public does not respect this wish it may become necessary to again freeze stocks.

Court of Appeal

Victoria Sittings

In Rex vs. Alexander Metzler the defendant was convicted of a statutory offence by a jury before the Chief Justice and was sentenced to ten years. P. S. Marsden appeared for the accused yesterday and appealed the sentence as being excessive. At the time of the offence Metzler was a soldier in training at Vernon, B.C.

The court was unanimous in reducing the sentence to six years. Carew Martin, K.C., appeared for the Crown.

An appeal from the judgment of Mr. Justice Smith in Allan L. Eggins, plaintiff-respondent, and F. J. Beechy, defendant-appellant, in connection with an accident, occupied the balance of the day and continues on Monday. George E. Hausser appeared for the appellant and Dugald Donaghy, K.C., for respondent.

The plaintiff obtained judgment in the sum of $6,415.65, covering general and special damages, and the defendant suffering damages in the sum of $972; it was adjudged the said damages were due to the fault of both in the degree of 66 2-3 on part of defendant and 33 1-3 on part of plaintiff and the plaintiff was allowed to recover 2-3 of his taxed costs.

The appellant alleges the judge erred in finding the defendant guilty of negligence and further that the ultimate negligence, the true and effective cause of the accident was that of the plaintiff and also the judge erred in his apportionment of the damages and costs.

Peremptory List: Eggins vs. Beachy (at bar); McPaO vs. Vancouver Exhibition Association.

'The Boy From Maine'

By KATHARINE BRUSH

(Copyright, 1943, by Katharine Brush)

CHAPTER VI

"Here's your ticket," Mr. Hastings said. "You just hang onto that, till the conductor asks you for it. He'll be wearing a blue cap. And here's a little something for expenses . . ."

It was fifty dollars. Hobey did not know that it was not polite to count it. He thumbed it over slowly, till he saw how much it was.

"No," he said swiftly then. "Thanks. No, I couldn't."

"Nonsense!" Mr. Hastings said. "Certainly. Put it in your pocket. It's your salary as my skipper, and you more than earned it. And now you'll have to hurry along, if you're going to catch that train . . ."

The fifty dollars lasted for two months, with what he made in wages. He kept the railroad ticket. At first this was because there was the chance that he might want to use it after all—that he might have to use it, in the end. He did not think about redeeming it, while he still could. It was security; it was his passage home in case of desperation and complete defeat; and treasuring it most carefully, he let its thirty days of value lapse before he knew it.

He still had nineteen dollars of the fifty at that time.

Later there was a day when he unearthed the ticket, and reread the printing on it, and discovered that that way was closed. The thing was worthless now—it was a souvenir. And still he kept it. He put it in an envelope in which he also kept some clippings about Rosalie and a blurred picture of her and when he moved from place to place, from room to cheaper room, and into barracks and out of them again, and on to life, he took the envelope along, ticket and all.

Rosalie at seventeen looked twenty—as she wished to—and she had known that she was lovely for a long time now. She sought perpetual assurances of this from habit, not from need. She could dismiss it—she could even think herself ill-favored and unfortunate by concentrating on the things that she was not, and that she did not have. She was not happy. She was only superficially gay. There was a restlessness in her that was as vague and undirected as it was persistent and unbearable. She wanted more of everything—more fun in life, more drama. She wanted something new to happen. She was glad there was a war.

She had been born to this precocious boredom, and to its concomitants. Nothing attainable had ever been denied her. She was the only child of foolish parents with a great deal of new money.

She was impervious, she was headstrong; she had a monstrous selfishness, and a black temper—it was amazing that she should be still enchanting, but she was. In her worst moments people said, "But she can be the sweetest thing . . ."

They were saying it rather often just at present. She was behaving badly. Boredom had made her reckless; and the one losing battle of her life to date—a social one, in which she had been ignominiously defeated by the serene imperviousness of Back Bay to anybody's recent money, or to any little upstart's charm of personality—had made her furiously defiant and rebellious. This was a phase that had begun last year, when she was still in school. A proud and haughty school, conservatively fashionable, ultra-Bostonian.

It expressed itself in many different ways, of which perhaps the least emphatic was the extra dash of make-up on her face—the most emphatic, her flirtation with Leila Godfrey's husband. Between these two extremes there was a graduated range of gestures, impudences, peccadillos. She smoked cigarettes in public—that was brazen in those days.

Now in the Autumn of 1917 she gave crowded, noisy parties in the house on Beacon Street, all over the first floor of it, with orchestras under the stairs playing "Smiles," and "I'm Sorry, Dear," and "K-K-K-Katy," and "Keep Your Head Down, Fritzie Boy." She danced almost continuously in the afternoons and evenings—she began at 4 o'clock, in the pink restaurant over Tremont Street where everybody danced that year, where all the men were officers, only the brave deserved the fair, and there were printed placards—"Spurs Are Not Permitted on the Dance Floor."

At her own parties, there were now more uniforms than dinner jackets; there were always more, each time; there were new faces, too, replacing missing ones. Ensigns from Charlestown. Boy lieutenants from Camp Devens. Embryonic naval aviators from the ground school just across the bridge.

To this melange, the dark Ted Godfrey of the errant fancy and the bold black eye had transiently attached himself, sometime last Winter. He had been welcome, since he came alone. Everybody liked him, and nobody liked the lofty beauty he had married with such fanfare several years ago. Rosalie in particular did not like Leila Godfrey, for the cogent reason that if Mrs. Godfrey knew that Rosalie was alive, she gave no sign, and never had, and probably never would.

Ted came often and stayed late at Rosalie's Winter parties—that was good, that was amusing—and in the Spring he fell in love with her, and that was even better. She encouraged that, thinking gleefully of Mrs. Godfrey all the while. She even hoped that Mrs. Godfrey would find out about it—or she thought she did.

She was mistaken. That was just at first, and she knew better presently. She knew in April that she was in love with Ted, and that she didn't in the least want anyone at all to learn about it, or to interfere—and she knew also that this wouldn't do. She kept reminding herself that it wouldn't do, and telling Ted it wouldn't, until the end of June. Then she departed for the coast of Maine, on schedule.

There she recovered.

GROWERS FAVOR JAPANESE HELP

PENTICTON, B.C., Jan. 22 (CP)—Delegates to the British Columbia Fruit Growers' Association in annual session here Thursday adopted a resolution commending the labor policy of the association's central executive, "including the obtaining of Japanese labor in those districts which request it."

The labor policy, as endorsed by the convention, provides for the use of Japanese in orchard work in any district which requests their use. Before Japanese may be brought into any area approval must be obtained from the municipal or city council, or from a majority of the citizens in the district.

Adoption of the resolution, offered by the Vernon delegation and one of the most contentious on the agenda, came after E. J. Chambers, B.C.F.G.A. representative on the National Selective Service board, told delegates:

"If we have no labor, we don't need to worry about priorities and income taxes, will we?"

Summerland and Oliver delegations voted against the resolution because of the reference to Japanese labor.

Penticton delegates, denied the use of Japanese orchard workers last season by their municipal council, voted solidly for the resolution.

What Today Means

AQUARIUS

If January 23 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date will be from 10.45 a.m. to 12.45 p.m., from 2.45 to 4.45 p.m. and from 8.45 to 10.45 p.m. The danger periods will be from 8.45 to 10.45 a.m., from 6.45 to 8.45 p.m. and from 10.45 p.m. until midnight.

In a desire to dominate other people the average person is apt to be domineering and decidedly unpleasant on January 23, so be careful that you do not give in to any such inclination. There are apt to be more bad than good suggestions made during the next twenty-four hours, so weigh carefully those you receive before you act upon them. Should you feel in the humor to joke on this date it might be well to remember to distinguish between jokes which might be construed as offensive and those that really are amusing. Hospitably inclined persons should consider the costs before they extend invitations if their financial resources are limited. Married, engaged and courting couples must bear in mind constantly that "Whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap" for the implanting of wrong thoughts is apt to have a sad aftermath.

If you are a woman and January 23 is your birthday, you probably are a firm believer that "actions speak louder than words," so you are apt to have little patience with people who offer excuses for the nonperformance of duties. Ordinarily you may give the impression that you possess a placid disposition but once aroused to anger you probably are capable of a volcanic display of righteous indignation. Being thoughtful and considerate you may have many ardent admirers, especially among the members of your own household. As a restaurant manager, modiste, interior decorator, teacher, scientific research worker, demonstrator, lecturer, actress, artist, musician, singer, trained nurse or doing your bit to make this a safe world in which to live, you should achieve successful results. Your feminine charm and thorough understanding of the man you marry should enable you to make your marriage most successful and happy.

The child born on January 23 usually is an impressionable youngster and care must be exercised during his formative years to keep him from being subjected to unpleasant experiences. Worthy ambitions and high ideals are apt to stimulate this youngster's mature efforts.

If you are a man and January 23 is your natal day never permit success to cause you to appear to be an egotist. Never venture more than you can well afford to lose, for things sometimes go contrary to your expectations. As a broker, banker, business executive, theatrical man, hotel manager, merchant, manufacturer, artist, journalist, author, doctor, clergyman, scientist, agriculturist, skilled mechanic or a result of some demonstration of patriotism you probably will win many laurels.

THE OTHER SIDE

Standing at his post by the canal bank in the hush of Christmas night, the Home Guard heard someone approaching. Waiting until he thought the newcomer was near enough, he challenged:

"Halt! Who goes there?"

"Friend!" came the prompt reply in a "well-oiled" voice.

"Advance and be recognized," he ordered.

From the darkness came the angry retort:

"What do you think I am—a blooming duck? I'm on the other side!"

Fuel Situation in City More Serious

Only Prospects of Relief Lie in Break in Cold Weather or Increased Supplies of Coal and Wood, Dealers Declare as Demand Grows

CONTINUED cold weather has aggravated a fuel situation in Victoria that was already serious a week ago, and unless temperatures moderate or shipments of coal and wood to the city are speeded up there is no hope of relief, dealers said yesterday.

Weeks behind in filling orders placed with them, they are gratefully accepting delivery in whatever reduced quantities the collieries and mills are able to supply, they said, and are doing their best to meet the urgent needs of the city's population, which has increased considerably since last Winter. There was no let-up yesterday in the insistent appeals from all parts of the city for wood and coal.

"The situation is none too bright," said Peter Cunningham, manager of Kingham-Gillespie Coal Co., Ltd. "The great difficulty is the shortage of coal; there isn't nearly enough coming in to meet the demand."

SOME OFFICES CLOSED

Dealers reported being anywhere from four to eight weeks behind with orders. Some offices were closed yesterday. Others were open, but had no wood or coal to sell. Several displayed signs advising the public of the situation: "No coal or wood for sale today."

In several instances, disappointed customers, declaring they had used their last pound of coal, asked if they could have the samples on display.

While the abnormally cold weather—the worst in thirty-four years—had a lot to do with the situation, a number of contributory causes must be taken into consideration in explaining the city's plight, fuel merchants said.

PROPORTIONATELY HIGHER

While Island collieries produced more coal in 1942 than in the previous year, the additional output was not in proportion to the increase in demand, and the labor shortage is preventing many of these collieries from reaching a maximum production, merchants said.

Shipments from Alberta mines are helping considerably, and as a dealer remarked: "Alberta is saving the day so far as the domestic demand is concerned."

Another factor in added coal consumption this Winter is the conversion from oil-burning heating systems in hotels, apartment houses and other large consuming units.

Requirements of the armed forces in this area have also added to the demand. Needs of the services for the heating season of 1942-43 were estimated at 45,000 tons.

PUBLIC CO-OPERATES

Dealers were high in their praise of the co-operation being received from residents. Because of the labor shortage and conditions underfoot, several merchants have instructed their men to leave their deliveries outside homes, thereby saving the time that would be taken to carry sacks into basements.

"We can't take a chance on accidents," one dealer explained. "A man carrying a 200-pound sack of coal might easily slip and hurt himself, and have to lay off. We don't want our employees to lose any time.

"The public has responded in a spirit that shows their appreciation of the situation, and are taking delivery almost anywhere."

As the situation became progressively worse appeals for assistance to the fuel division of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board have increased. Under the circumstances, however, officials have been unable to give much immediate help.

ORDER TO APPLY HERE

Meanwhile, Mayor Andrew McGavin announced that Victoria will be covered by any orders detailing soldiers to cut and deliver wood during the cold weather.

According to a Vancouver report, an order by the Pacific Command will make soldiers available for cutting and gathering bushwood.

In his statement, issued after conferring with Premier John Hart, Mayor McGavin said: "The Premier has been in touch with Hon. Ian Mackenzie in Ottawa concerning the use of soldiers for cutting and delivering fuel in available military vehicles. Mr. Hart has assured me any arrangements made for Vancouver would apply here."

A.R.P. Pamphlet Given to Chinese

A circular printed in Chinese, which summarizes a lecture by Dr. C. S. Beals, presents an outline of gas protection, and reviews A.R.P. work in general, is distributed to every Chinese in the city with the purchase of a gas mask, Inspector A. H. Bishop, civilian protection officer, said yesterday.

The pamphlet is illustrated with pictures of persons undergoing respirator tests in the Royal Jubilee Hospital gas chamber.

A copy of the circular will be sent to the Chinese Government at Chungking to show what the local Chinese colony is doing toward A.R.P. work, Inspector Bishop said.

MERCHANT VESSEL SUNK

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22 (AP).—The United States Navy announced today that a small Polish merchant vessel was torpedoed, shelled and sunk by an enemy submarine late in December in the Caribbean area. Survivors were landed at New York and Miami. The sinking raised to 800 the Associated Press total of announced United Nations and neutral ship losses since December 7, 1941.

Warden's Report Shows Progress

Thanking all church organizations for the assistance and co-operation given him since he became incumbent of St. Matthias' Church after the retirement of Rev. J. Blewett, who is on active service with the air force, Rev. E. O. Burgess-Browne spoke encouragingly to members present at the annual meeting of the parishioners of St. Matthias' Church and outlined the work to be done in the future.

F. C. Price, the people's warden, presented the financial statement, which showed the finances of the church to be very satisfactory. Reports from the Sunday school, women's guild, sanctuary guild, women's evening guild, and the women's auxiliary all showed progress both in objectives undertaken and financially.

Mr. Burgess-Browne appointed H. D. Patterson as rector's warden. F. C. Price was unanimously re-elected people's warden, and the following were elected to various offices: Church committee: W. H. A. Long, L. Cole, C. R. Stevens, M. C. Hooper, N. Niven, A. W. Riley, R. H. Moffat, R. A. Bainbridge, J. C. Willcox and G. Malcolm.

Missionary committee: Mrs. S. Coulter and Mrs. Rice-Jones, P. C. Price and H. D. Patterson. Lay delegates to synod: W. H. A. Long and R. A. Bainbridge; substitutes, N. Niven and A. W. Riley.

Lay delegates to ruridecanal conference: Mrs. H. Rice-Jones and Mrs. S. Coulter. D. O. Thomas was elected as auditor for the ensuing year.

BLAMES POLICY OF GOVERNMENT

Leader of C.C.F. Says Wages Of Steel Workers Are Too Low

OTTAWA, Jan. 22 (CP). — M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, said in an address prepared for broadcast tonight three vital steel mills are idle because "the arbitrary price and wage freezing policy adopted in this country decrees that men employed in this arduous and hazardous occupation should work for a wage that is demonstrably too low."

In his first radio address over the national network of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation since his election as C.C.F. leader last year, Mr. Coldwell said the C.C.F. calls for the immediate establishment of a postwar planning commission "truly representative of all classes in the community."

Canadian authorities had refused and continued to refuse the steelworkers a basic wage that would still be too low for a decent standard of living but would, at least, give the workers and their families adequate subsistence, he said.

"What can these men think of a war effort that does not hesitate to spend hundreds of millions of dollars to assist private industry, but refuses to give 13,000 workers a couple of million dollars a year to improve their depressed and substandard conditions?" Mr. Coldwell asked.

HARM WAR EFFORT

"By this sort of policy we harm our war effort. But we do more than that. We store up serious trouble and perpetuate injustice for the postwar period."

Because there had been no overall democratic plan, much of the integration brought about in wartime had been placed in the hands of representatives of powerful financial, industrial and business interests. The work should be done by national administrators paid only by the state and responsible to the people's representatives, said Mr. Coldwell.

Having effected a change to a "full, working democracy" in war planning, the C.C.F., using the experience gained, would retain all the economic controls and social agencies necessary for the maintenance of full employment in the postwar period, Mr. Coldwell said.

To insure the least dislocation in changing from war to peace, the C.C.F. called for the immediate establishment of a postwar planning commission representative of all classes. The commission would establish equally-representative regional bodies and encourage local planning committees to study conditions and to formulate plans for the consideration of the regional and provincial committees, who, in turn, would report to the national committee.

Schemes should be prepared for the developments of mineral resources, electric power and waterways, irrigation of certain regions, and electrification of rural areas.

Forests required protection from "private exploitation and Government neglect." Soil surveys should be carried on and uses for agricultural products should be sought by research and social planning.

Canada must be rehoused, Mr. Coldwell said. The present conditions of congestion and lack of sanitary and other modern conveniences especially in rural areas, were "a blot" on the nation and a threat to public health.

Rural rehabilitation must be undertaken on a nationwide scale. The C.C.F. criticism of the present system was that too few farmers and too few people generally had homes or farms they could truly call their own.

The development of co-operative farm communities with comprehensive plans for security and social betterment would lay the broad foundations on which farm families could build "a full and creative life."

NATIONAL SECURITY

A national security system similar to that in New Zealand, should be devised for Canada. Every citizen had the right to protection by society and in return society had the right to expect service from everyone, according to his ability.

"In addition to the economic plans I have suggested, a fundamental policy is the socialization of the banking and financial system," he said.

"No successful use of the nation's currency and credit is possible without it."
